Hope Haven event highlights child abuse prevention

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Hope Haven Children's Shelter hosted a ceremony and social to kick off Child Abuse Prevention Month at its home for neglected and abused children in Waveland.

There was also a special tribute to Bobbie Barr, one of the founders of the shelter. Barr recently passed away. It was her final request that a vessel containing some of her ashes be placed on the grounds of the shelter that she worked so hard to create. Many of Barr's family members attended the ceremony. Friends and co-workers tearfully remembered the woman known for her strength of

Olde Towne group plans performance

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

A new theater company is currently in the making in Hancock County.

Local thespians from Pass Christian, Bay St. Louis and Waveland have combined their creative minds to form the Olde Towne Players.

The organizers, which have approximately 200 years of theater experience between them, include Ray Kutos, Nan and Dick Ehrbright, Sherry Schwabacher, Becky Rotundo, Sandy Higdon and Ted and Betty Stechman.

Compliments of the Chefs

Downtown Pass Christian was packed with patrons looking for food and fun Friday afternoon for the first Chef's Market. The event, which takes place the first Friday of each month, is sponsored by the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce. Local culinary specialists prepared everything from shrimp, crawfish and pizza to barbecue and baked pastries on Friday for the first Chef's Market. Fruits, vegetables and fresh flowers were also sold; a massage therapist was on hand; and several downtown stores will open for shoppers, and other businesses will set up informational booths.

Second Saturday Artwalk 2003 begins

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Bay St. Louis' downtown merchants invite you to join them for the first Second Saturday Artwalk of 2003. From 5 to 8 p.m., there will be live music, artist's receptions at the galleries, refreshments and late evening shopping.

Come early, eat at one of Old Town's excellent restaurants, pick up a map of the city and plan your evening of visiting galleries and shopping in our interesting shops.

'HOT SPOTS'
SERENITY GALLERY,
126 MAIN ST. Will feature a collection of works from the Alfred J. Walker Fine Art, Gallery of Boston.

For more than 22 years, Alfred J. Fine Art has specialized in offering fine examples of late 19th and 20th century American paintings, drawings and sculpture from its Newbury Street location in the heart of Boston's prestigious Back Bay shopping district.

The gallery participates in several annual art fairs including the Mint Museum Antique Show in Charlotte, North Carolina and has for over 10 years, participated in the U.S. Artist's Exhibition and sale to benefit the PAFA in Philadelphia.

Owner Alfred Walker last week announced the opening of a satellite gallery in Old Town Bay St. Louis at Serenity Gallery.

Two of the several works on display are "Still Life with Marigolds" by Henry Brooks and "Reflection's by Michael Zigmond.

Owner Alfred Walker and Boston gallery manager Sarah Boocock said they are looking forward to working with Jerry Dixon and his staff at Serenity Gallery to reach the broad community of collectors and enthusiasts beyond the New England region through this second gallery location.

Also during Second

Saturday, Court Street Station, 200 S. Beach Blvd. Will feature various artist. Deidre Dear painter, Charmine Head-doll maker, Claudia Moon-pottery and Bobbie Schloegel-jewelry maker.

Other activities scheduled are character artist, balloon artist, face painter and tarot card reader.

The band Hozey and Brown will be playing at the restaurant from 6 to 9 p.m.

Peoples Bank will sponsor the music of Bo & Dee on Beach Blvd.

For more information, contact Second Saturday Chairman Richie Zitzmann at 467-6870

THE ARTS hosts membership drive

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Over the past few months almost 150 people have filled out questionnaires indicating their interest in being a part of a county-wide arts organization. "I want to thank everyone who took time to complete a questionnaire," explained Gwen Impson. "The responses helped in formulating the goals and structure of the organization now officially named "THE ARTS, Hancock County Mississippi." After finishing the needs assessment phase and the planning phase, we are ready to actively recruit members."

Second Saturday, which is April 12, marks the beginning of a month long membership drive.

A registration table will be set up on Main Street from 5:00 to 8:00 pm with information about THE ARTS and membership forms.

Membership levels range from $25 for artists, $40 for arts friends, $50 for arts businesses, $75 for arts associates (non-profit organizations) to $100 to $500 for arts patrons to $600 to 1,000 and up for arts ambassadors. Brochures will explain the benefits of each membership level.

The slogan "bringing it all together" refers both to the geographic areas within Hancock County and to the effort of bringing all artists together no matter the medium.

Visual artists, performing artists, writers, musicians and artisans are all welcome. Although the focus is on Hancock County membership is not limited to Hancock residents. Nor is membership limited to artists; anyone interested in the arts is welcome to join.

For more information, contact Gwen Impson at 467-1007.

Celebrates 90th birthday

Mrs. Oreader (Aunt Rita) Richardson of Waveland celebrated her 90th birthday on Friday, April 4, 2003. Born in Biloxi, Mrs. Richardson has been a resident of Waveland for 67 years. She said her mother lived to be 102, and her late husband, Cordelia Richardson, lived to be over 99. Here, she proudly displays a quilt she recently made at the Hancock County Citizens Center, which she attends three or four days a week.

Passover celebrated at Bayou Talla in Kiln

THE SEA COAST ECHO
On Wednesday, April 16 at 6:00 PM Bayou Talla Fellowship Church, 18555 Hwy 43 West in Kiln will celebrate a Christian Passover.

This event is designed to teach the significance of the Jewish custom that speaks of the promised Messiah. Pastor Michael Wells explains each step of the Old Testament custom including many of the Jewish traditions, which have been added.

Passover takes place prior to Resurrection Sunday and commemorates the deliverance of the Hebrew nation from their time of captivity in Egypt. Passover is the oldest continuing religious celebration in existence.

Christians believe that Jesus celebrated the Passover meal with his disciples just before he was crucified and that an understanding of the Passover is extremely helpful in acknowledging the Jewish foundations of the Christian Faith.

Attendees will participate in each step of the Passover meal throughout the evening as Pastor Wells teaches its significance and application. For information and reservations phone the church office at 255-1118. Seating will be limited.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

For sure this past winter has been one of sudden drastic changes in temperature and moisture.

Yet, have you noticed how beautiful the spring shrubs are that are blooming about the community?

The azaleas, camellias, dogwoods, in addition to many other colorful shrubs and fruit trees have just been beautiful.

We received a telephone call about a beautiful yard in Waveland on Thursday at 315 Hillcrest. I drove by and there is a large variety of shrubs in bloom. It is just a very beautiful setting among the tall pines with flowers of all colors.

This is not the only place, as there are many throughout the area. Azaleas are so beautiful and there are so many varieties. The only care they need is a bit of water during very dry seasons and some fertilizer.

I have also noticed several folks working in their yards on flower and vegetable gardens. Of course, there is still a battle with those pesky "all mouth" gnats.

It is good to see folks taking pride in their yards, it just makes our community more beautiful. Keep up the good work, folks.

In recent months there has been much talk about Hancock County's Greenways Project.

So on Monday, one can learn the latest news about the great project which has really been discussed in various forms for many years.

Allison Anderson of Unabridged Architecture will present preliminary results of a survey asking residents to identify special places in the county.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors and Chamber of Commerce are seeking to develop a plan for conservation of special places in the county, as well as define additional recreational needs.

This will take place on Monday, 5:30 p.m. at the Hancock County Covered Arena and Equestrian Facility located on the Kiln-DeLisle Road. It is across the street from Hancock East Elementary. (Traveling North on Highway 603, take a right at the signal light and the arena is several miles down the road on the left.)

In addition, senior students from Hancock High and Bay High, who are receiving college credits in monitoring local waterways, will be presenting their preliminary findings.

The two special high school classes' project as well as the Greenways Project are funded through a Coastal Impact Assistance Grant Administered by the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality.

Sue Chamberlain has been the spearhead of the Greenways Project and I am sure she is hoping to see many concerned residents who will be at the special reception Monday.

I hope to see you there tomorrow evening.

The annual American Cancer Society's Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off is scheduled for Monday, April 28, with Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre as general chairman.

Eddie's goal this year is to have 50 entries in the contest, which is a benefit to the Cancer Society.

Thus far there have been several entrants, but there is still room for many more.

Persons interested in further information can contact Sandra Hoda at 467-4425, Barbara Redding, 467-9092, or Judge Ricky, or Tanna Adam at 255-3550.

The Cook-Off is really a great fun time and is for a very deserving cause.

Tax breaks for military personnel

The Senate overwhelmingly passed a bipartisan bill to provide our military personnel with expanded tax breaks. It is a measure that will have a significant impact in Mississippi, a state with large numbers of active duty and National Guard and Reserve personnel.

The Armed Forces Tax Fairness Act of 2003 amends the Internal Revenue Service Code of 1986 to, among other things, provide additional tax exemptions for uniformed personnel who sell homes. It also provides for an expansion of combat-zone, tax-free benefits, and it enables qualifying National Guard and Reserve personnel to deduct much of their overnight travel expenses incurred while going from their home to National Guard bases.

It is perhaps the latter benefit that will impact our state most.

Mississippi has many active duty military bases and personnel, and our state's National Guard and Reserve component makes up the largest section of Mississippi's military community. These men and women often travel overnight distances from their home to their training base. It is not unusual for guardsmen in North Mississippi to travel to Camp Shelby in Hattiesburg regularly - traveling almost the entire length of our state - a five to six hour drive. Extensive overnight travel can create a significant financial burden on many military households. This legislation which passed the Senate recognizes the extra expenses these men and women incur to serve our country, and it provides them with some well-deserved financial relief for sacrifices made above and beyond their military service.

Active duty military personnel will find the exemptions for home sales especially helpful. Active duty personnel move often, sometimes without notice, and without choice. This legislation will exempt service personnel from having to live in their primary residence for two of the past five years in order to qualify for a capital gains tax exclusion. With our military deployments and commitments growing, the law will now recognize that many military families are rarely in the same general locale for two years, and should not be excluded from capital gains tax breaks. Moving far and often, and uprooting from friends, neighbors, schools and community is tough on anyone, but it is especially tough on military families who find almost constant relocation to be a prerequisite for military service. This provision should make the difficult process of transition a little easier for families who sacrifice so much for our nation.

By extending combat-zone tax free benefits to contingency operations, our young men and women serving in Iraq and Afghanistan will benefit from additional tax exemptions. People who join the military today often find themselves near or in a combat zone, such as today in our War on Terror. We do not know how long the War on Terror will last, or what area of the globe may be its

Letters to the Editor

My flag flies proudly

Dear Editor,
A Tribute to our fallen heroes so young, so brave, but with freedom woven into every fibre of their being, they gave their all, true heroes!

As Jesus holds each to His bosom and wipes away each tear, sweeps each horrible memory from their minds and assures them, "You are home, be proud, you fought for freedom, justice and right."

No greater love has man for God then he lay down his life for his brother.

May we never forget their ultimate sacrifices!
God bless our troops! God bless America!

My Flag
My flag flies proudly for all to see
My flag is a medal for all who gave their life for me

My flag is America, the home of the brave
My flag is a grateful "thank you" for my country which their bravery saved

My flag is my heritage, American to my very core
I pray, under God, that my flag will fly forever more
Wr. 7/4/2002
M. Gavagnie

Remember, without so many who gave so much for America, freedom of speech would not be worth any more than a few words on paper.

Fly Old Glory in their honor; they died to give us this right.

Margaret Gavagnie

The Sea Coast Echo welcomes comments from its readers. Letters must be signed and include address or telephone number. Letters should be brief, preferably typewritten and double-spaced. Only one letter per writer per month. The editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters. Letters of thanks, expressions of appreciation and political endorsements are inappropriate.

Please show support

Our men and women are fighting for us don't you think the least you can do is show support?

Fly a flag, tie a yellow ribbon, put a paper flag in your window, wear a yellow ribbon, wear an American Flag. Do anything so our men and women know we support them.

I have spoken to a mother in Waveland who has a son in the War Zone. I asked her if there was anything I could do for her. I told her I know how she feels, you see my son was in Desert Storm. She gave me his address so I can keep in touch with him. I have never met the lady or her son but I am proud to do what I can to show my support.

My heart goes out to all our service men and women. I am going to take pictures all over Bay St. Louis and Waveland and send them so they see we do support them.

May God Bless our Troops and all of the ones left behind.

God Bless America!

Southern Miss, U.S. Navy Partner to sharpen technological edge to enhance nation's military

THE SEA COAST ECHO

At a time when the United States is looking more and more to a technologically advanced military, the University of Southern Mississippi's Department of Marine Science is providing a means to enhance that leading edge.

Three years ago, Southern Miss began a partnership with the U.S. Navy to provide an advanced degree program in hydrographic science, the study of mapping the sea floor. The military applications of this discipline dictate the movement of naval forces in combat and peacetime.

Large vessels like aircraft carriers require adequate bottom clearance for safe navigation. Surveying the underwater landscape in and around target areas can tell the Navy where forces can safely maneuver.

Rear Admiral Thomas Q. Donaldson V is commander of the worldwide Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command (CNMOC), which is headquartered at Stennis Space Center. Donaldson was named hydrographer of the Navy in April 2001. Both officers and civilian employees of CNMOC have graduated from the Southern Miss program.

"This is a win win situation," Donaldson said. "People get the training they need immediately without major disruption to their personal or professional lives. In return, the Navy gets trained people without the expense of sending key performers away to school for a year or more."

In the Southern Miss program based at the Stennis Space Center, naval personnel attend an intensive one year program just a few hundred feet from their normal duty stations.

Dr. Denis Wiesenburg is chair of the Southern Miss Department of Marine Science at Stennis and one of the authors of the hydrographic science partnership with the Navy. He sees this type of cooperative venture as an increasing trend in higher education.

"Matching specific educational opportunities with targeted student needs assures the long term success of both a university and its clients," Wiesenburg said. "USM's presence at Stennis allowed us to deliver graduate education where it was needed most and where it could be put to use immediately."

Gathering some of the top minds in hydrography was a key component of the program from its inception. Faculty moved to USM from the established Geodesy and Geomatics Engineering Department at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, New Brunswick, and the Graduate School of Oceanography at the University of Rhode Island in Narragansett.

"We're very proud to have Dr. David Wells as a guiding force in the formation and delivery of our program," Wiesenburg said. Known internationally as one of the leading minds in the field of hydrography, Wells was one of the authors of the first definitive work on global positioning systems (GPS). Today, he continues to teach such courses as "Satellite Geodesy and Positioning," exploring the science of the size and shape of the earth and man's relative position on it.

David Dodd, a 1994 graduate of the geodesy and geomatics engineering program at UNB, coordinates the Hydrographic Science Program at USM's Stennis site.

"The program has evolved to provide both national and international students with an advanced education in a program that has received the highest level of accreditation from the international bodies that are responsible for hydrography and the safety of navigation throughout the world," Dodd said. The Southern Miss hydrography academic program was awarded category A certification by the Fédération Internationale des Géomètres/International Hydrographic Organization (FIG/WHO) International Advisory Board in April 2000.

This level of expertise in the increasingly technical field has already paid dividends to the Navy.

"I sent three military members from the first graduating class to aircraft carriers in the Arabian Gulf and they stepped into some of the most important roles on their ships," Donaldson said. "One of them was awarded a Bronze Star for performance in combat operations. Our civilian graduates now include 15 international leaders in 'Class A' hydrography at Stennis Space Center."

With 33 graduates already back at work in their various posts within the Naval Oceanographic Office, the graduates are asked to put their knowledge to work as part of the Navy's Fleet Survey Team (FST).

The Navy established the FST to fill a need for fast charting of "hot" areas, including areas where the Navy has - or will have - a significant presence, or where existing chart accuracy is questionable.

The FST consists of three meteorological and oceanographic officers and two to four civilians. Lt. Cmdr. Brian Cannon was one of the first recipients of the USM master's degree in hydrography and one of the first naval officers assigned to the FST.

"I think the biggest take away from the Fleet Survey Team experience was the value of an applied degree," Cannon said from his current position as Flag METOC officer for Commander, Carrier Group Five, aboard the USS Kitty Hawk. "The hands on environment and small class size of USM really made a difference in preparing me for a future in hydrography. We learned the business from the bottom up and can now take that education, apply it to the U.S. Navy's operations, and provide war fighters with that extra edge."

Upon completion of their Fleet Survey Team tour, naval officers transfer to fleet billets either on major afloat staffs or as the meteorology and oceanography officer aboard an aircraft carrier or large deck amphibious ship, said Capt. Philip G. Renaud, commanding officer for the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis.

"We prefer that the FST officers transfer to battle group staffs so that they can influence battle group commanders in critical war-fighting decision making regarding battlespace characterization, precise targeting, mine warfare, and safety of navigation," he said. The FST officers also have familiarity with military survey ship operations and can advise fleet and battle group commanders regarding those surveys.

During their coursework, hydrography students also have an opportunity to participate in ongoing hydrographic research at the university's Hydrographic Science Research Center (HSRC), also located at Stennis.

Don Roman, CAPT USN (Ret.), is the new director of the HSRC. Roman said he envisions a continued relationship with the U.S. Navy and an expansion of research opportunities with other government and commercial clients.

"The advances in hydrographic science that result from our research directly benefit both the Navy and the wider national and international hydrographic community," Roman said. "Hydrographic surveying, data processing and visualization, navigation, marine resource management, and even homeland security are some of the many activities our research will benefit."

A division of the College of Marine Sciences, the Department of Marine Science is strategically located at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, home to the world's largest population of oceanographers and hydrographers. The department officers both master's and doctoral degrees in marine science and a master's degree in hydrographic science.

next battlefield. Combat anytime, anywhere has always been and always will be the primary function of our military. Our tax code should fully recognize the expanded risks facing today's military personnel who are putting their lives on the line for our freedom in a struggle which has a very uncertain, unpredictable time table.

Congress should work with President Bush to create a fairer tax code for all Americans - military and civilian - and we will begin that important debate in the weeks ahead. With some in Congress already trying to slash the President's proposed tax cut for working Americans. The tax battle on Capitol Hill is just beginning. Yet, I am very pleased to see these tax revisions for our military personnel pass without opposition. People can talk a lot about how we should all support the troops, but talk without action is just that - talk. This bipartisan bill translates talk into action, providing our military men and women with some concrete benefits that will help them, help their dependents, and help America win the War on Terror.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions or comments about this column. Write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attn: Press Office)

Bay City Dancers claim top awards at national competition

The Arabesque School of Dance Bay City Dancers won an amazing nine first place grand national titles at Disney's Contest of Champions dance competition in Orlando, Fla.

The Bay City Dancers consist of 34 members who competed in three age categories. The team was supported by over one hundred family and friends who traveled to Orlando to cheer on the local dancers.

Disney's Contest of Champions hosted over four thousand dancers from thirty states and Puerto Rico. The Arabesque "Bay City Dancers" elementary team won first place Grand National Champions in Hip-Hop, third in Lyrical, and third in Jazz.

The Bay City Dancers junior team placed first place Grand National Champions in Modern.

The elementary and junior team competed with a prop dance which won first place Grand National Champions in the junior prop category and received the coveted "Best in Category" award for placing first out of all prop dances from all age divisions.

The Pro-Am team also won Grand National Champions in an astonishing three categories: tap, jazz, and hiphop. They also managed to take home the Best in Category award for having the highest scoring tap dance from any age division.

In the junior large ensemble category the Bay City Dancers placed second with a tap routine and fourth with a lyrical routine. Mattison Scardino and Alli Goscinski placed second in the elementary duet and trio division. Kaitlen Collins and Brooke Moran placed fourth in the junior duet and trio division.

Rainee Davis, Alli Goscinski, Victoria Lusco and Mattison Scardino won first place Grand National Champions in the small ensemble division. Whitley Lawler placed in the top 10 out of all elementary soloist. Cassie Holzhauser placed in the top nine out of all junior soloist.

The Arabesque School of Dance is owned and directed by Karen Compretta. The Bay City Dancers is under the direction of Miranda Compretta. Jessica Caillet and Miranda Compretta serve as the team's choreographers.

The Bay City Dancers perform at various community and coast wide events such as, Cruising the Coast, Wavefest, The Woman Business Leaders of MS conference held at Casino Magic, The Junior MS Pageant and Relay for Life.

Hope -- preventing abuse

character and caring soul.

Hope Haven was founded in 1984. The founding members were Barr, Mary Carpenter, Lois Griffin and Carol Ripley. The shelter has served 1,500 local children since it opened in 1996.

The latest figures released in the Annual Report on Child Abuse Data issued by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services indicate the following:

CHILDREN ABUSED AND NEGLECTED

- An estimated 879,000 children in the United States were victims of abuse and neglect in 2000, out of about 3 million referrals for suspected maltreatment.

- Cases of child abuse and neglect rose in 2000 for the first time in seven years, to 12.2 per 1,000 children. Confirmed maltreatment cases peaked in 1993, with 15.3 per 1,000 children. The rate fell for six years, to 11.8 per thousand in 1999.

- Of those child abuse and neglect reports that were confirmed, 62.8 percent suffered neglect, 19.3 percent were physically abused, 10.1 percent were sexually abused and 7.7 percent were psychologically maltreated.

The highest victimization rate - 15.7 victims per 1,000 children - was for children aged 0-3.

- More than half of all victims were white (50.6%); a quarter (24.7%) were African-American; a sixth (14.2%) were Hispanic; Native Americans accounted for 1.6% of victims; and Asian-Pacific Islanders were 1.4% of victims.

- Children who had been victimized in a prior year were more than three times as likely to experience recurrence of maltreatment than other children. The report says, "For most children who experience maltreatment recurrence, the efforts of the CPS system have not been successful in preventing subsequent victimization."

PERPETRATORS

- Consistent with previous years, 84 percent of victims were abused by a parent, and the most common pattern was a "female parent acting alone".

FATALITIES

- About 1,200 children died of abuse or neglect in 2000, a small increase from 1999 that HHS officials believe is due to improved reporting.

- Children younger than 1 year old accounted for 43.7 percent of fatalities, and 85.1 percent of fatalities were younger than 6.

- Less than one-third (30.2%) of child fatalities were attributed to "Mother Only", compared to 40% for all victims of maltreatment.

- Maltreatment deaths were more often associated just with neglect (34.9%) than any other single type of abuse. (According to secondary analysis of the maltreatment reporting data in Child Welfare Outcomes 1999: Annual Report, the correlation between the percentages of child victims experiencing neglect and of children living in poverty was not significant.)

Hancock County Greenways program reception is Monday

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The public is invited to a reception to learn more about the Hancock County Greenways Project. The reception is scheduled for Monday, April 7th beginning at 5:30 p.m. at the Hancock County Covered Arena and Equestrian Facility located on Kiln-Delisle Road. Through this effort, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce seek to develop a plan for conservation of special places in the county, as well as define additional recreational needs. Allison Anderson of Unabridged Architecture will present preliminary results of a survey asking residents to identify special places in the county.

Students from the Hancock High School Environmental Science Class will also present their class work, monitoring local waterways and presenting their preliminary findings. The students are receiving college credit from Pearl River Community College. Both the Hancock County Greenways Project and the High School Environmental Science Class offered at Hancock High School and the Bay-Waveland High School are funded through a Coastal Impact Assistance Program Grant administered by the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality.

If you have any questions, please call Sue Chamberlain at 228-493-1147.

Garber announces re-election candidacy

Steve Garber has announced that he will seek re-election as Hancock County Sheriff in the 2003 elections.

Garber serving his first term as sheriff, is a 1982 graduate of Bay High and attended Jeff Davis Jr. College and Pearl River Community College and is a graduate of the 1991 USM/Harrison County Law Enforcement Academy.

He is married to the former Tammy Ladner of Nacaise Crossing and they are the parents of two daughters, Lacie and Whitney, both students at Hancock North Central Elementary.

In seeking re-election, Garber feels that his strong leadership and personal attention has been a major factor in the significant upgrade of the sheriff's department during his administration.

He says some of his major accomplishments include: the establishment of a specialized Narcotics Unit which has made record numbers of arrests in the county, the development of a criminal investigation unit which has solved over 70% of the burglaries and thefts, a substantial increase in patrol units throughout the county, the implementation of a crime prevention program for Senior Citizens, the establishment of a Summer Day Camp for the youth and established a State Certified Officer

Steve Garber

Training Academy that has trained Reserve Officers throughout South Mississippi.

Other accomplishments include: full time Deputies assigned to both Hancock High and Middle School, the savings of $100,000 per year on inmate food cost, the receipt of over $380,000 in Federal grants, in addition to working with Federal and Military agencies on Homeland Security for our county.

Garber also has been recognized by his peers in being elected as vice-president of the Mississippi Association of Sheriffs.

"When re-elected, I will continue the technological and physical upgrade of the department and place priority on the two most important vulnerable groups of our community, the Seniors and Youth," Garber added.

CHARLES MARTIN
 Charles Roland Martin, 78, of Pass Christian, MS, died Thursday, April 3, 2003 in New Orleans.

Mr. Martin was a third-generation native of Pass Christian, born on July 28, 1924. After graduating from St. Stanislaus College, he served in the U.S. Marine Corps in the Pacific Theatre during World War II. In 1947 he joined the Martin family's hardware business, becoming owner in 1963. He continued with Martin Hardware until his retirement in 1995. He was a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church, where he served as eucharistic minister, lay reader and usher captain, and active member of the St. Vincent DePaul Society and Pass Christian Historical Society.

As a business leader in Pass Christian, Mr. Martin worked on behalf of numerous community organizations. For his commitment, he was named Pass Christian's Outstanding Citizen 1993 by the Rotary Club and Pass Christian Area Council of the Chamber of Commerce, and was presented with the Service Above Self Award in 1977 by Rotary. He formerly served as president of the Chamber of Commerce, president of the Rotary Club, and president of the Lions Club. During his tenure as member of the Pass Christian School Board, he was instrumental in securing a band director, passing a retirement plan for custodial workers, and ensuring the school district remained autonomous. He formerly served as Boy Scouts of America Cub Master, and St. Paul's Carnival Association Parade Marshal.

Mr. Martin was a member of the Pass Christian Yacht Club and the Isles Golf Club. He enjoyed weekly luncheon fellowship with his ROMEOS (Retired Old Men Eating Out) and his golf buddies.

NASA Educator Astronaut nominations being accepted

Teachers with expertise in K-12 education wishing to take advantage of an "out-of-this-world" experience by applying to become one of NASA's Educator Astronauts are reminded that April 30, 2003, is the nomination deadline.

To date, NASA has received over 6,800 teacher nominations representing 3,400 teachers to fill two to three slots. The goals of NASA's Educator Astronaut Program, announced earlier this year, are to generate renewed interest in science and mathematics and cultivate a new generation of scientists and engineers by nominating and recruiting educators for NASA's astronaut corps.

The program illustrates Administrator Sean O'Keefe's commitment to NASA's mission to understand and protect our home planet, to explore the universe and search for life, and to inspire the next generation of explorers. The Educator Astronaut Program will help fulfill this important objective and offers a unique way to combine teaching skills with the excitement of space exploration.

Those educators selected will become civil servants and relocate to Houston, Texas, for astronaut training at Johnson Space Center. After graduation, the new Educator Astronauts will be eligible for a Space Shuttle flight assignment as fully trained Mission Specialists.

Harvard to lead Goodwill Industries

Gulfport resident and Hancock Bank senior vice president Diane Harvard will serve as 2003-2004 board of directors chairperson for Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi, Inc.

Goodwill constituents officially approved Harvard as chair and elected new officers and board members during the organization's annual meeting yesterday in downtown Gulfport.

Harvard, who received a masters of business administration degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and completed the Graduate School of Banking at Louisiana State University, joined Hancock Bank 18 years ago and serves as the company's credit concurrence officer in credit administration. A past financial vice president for the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce, she is a board member for the Gulf Coast Chapter of the American Red Cross and remains active in the Gulfport Rotary Club. Harvard attends Trinity United Methodist Church in Gulfport.

Joining Harvard on the Goodwill executive board are first vice chair Jim Fulton, second vice chair Basil Kennedy, secretary Joyce Johnson, treasurer Sandra Smith, past chair Wilbur Dees, and executive director LeRoy Modenbach.

Class of 2006 board members approved during the meeting are Ellis Cuevas, Billy Hewes, II, Basil Kennedy, Paul Maxwell, Tommy Pinkerton, Stephanie Shaw, Maurice Singleton, and Sandra Smith.

Additionally, outgoing board members Joanne Ellis and Perian Harrington received recognition for exceptional service and commitment to Goodwill missions.

Goodwill Industries originated in 1902 when Edgar

DIANE HARVARD

J. Helms, a Methodist minister, organized unemployed people in Boston's East End to collect, refurbish, and sell donated goods. Income from the re-sold items paid the workers' wages. Today, the Goodwill self-help philosophy serves approximately 45,000 people, with nearly 78,000 job placements annually.

Established in 1974, Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi, Inc., comprises six Coastal counties and provides employment services to over 1,000 people annually. In the Gulf Coast area, Goodwill provides invaluable job counseling and training for individuals with disabilities and other barriers to employment and has contract income of approximately $4 million in addition to traditional donated goods revenues.

More information about Goodwill services and collection sites is available from the main office at 2407 31st Street in Gulfport, telephone (228) 863-2323, or at www.goodwillms.org.

Bank is Bowling for Charity

By Cheryl Dewey

Every year the Peoples Bank Charity Committee selects one or two charities for whom we support and raise funds. This year, with our loved ones fighting in Iraq, it is more important than ever to support those at home in need. We've selected two charities this year: St. Vincent de Paul Pharmacy and the Junior Auxiliary of Biloxi-Ocean Springs, Inc., On Call/School Aid Project. St. Vincent de Paul Pharmacy helps provide prescription medicines to those in need who otherwise could not afford them. The Junior Auxiliary of Biloxi-Ocean Springs, Inc., On Call/School Aid Project provides assistance to needy students. These are two worthy charities and The Peoples Bank is proud to sponsor events and raise funds to help out needy families in our community.

What better way to help the needy and have fun doing it than a Battle of the Banks Bowling Tournament.

This year's tournament will be held at Park Ten Lanes in Diamondhead. On April 12, the tournament will start at 1:00 p.m. in the afternoon and run until about 4:00. Invitations have been sent out to the other banks on the coast and the response was great. We will occupy all 24 lanes in the alley and hope to have additional community support to cheer us on. This will be the third year in a row that we have sponsored the bowling tournament. The event has been very successful every year and a good time is what we have as well as the satisfaction of knowing we are helping support families here on the coast.

The day of the tournament we will be raffling a Beach Package and we will also have a Cash Split-the-Pot, half to charity and half to the winner. The raffle is open to all bowling alley patrons and the lucky winners will be drawn about 3:30 p.m. If you or someone you know is interested in donating a raffle item to help make the fund raiser more successful please contact The Peoples Bank and an employee will be glad to help you. Most of all, we would like your community support to cheer us on for a good time and a good cause. Who knows, you might win the Beach package or half the cash pot. So get on down to Park Ten Lanes in Diamondhead on April 12, join the fun, enter a raffle and cheer on your favorite teams. Let's roll a few strikes for our charities.

Coming in June, we are sponsoring a golf tournament to raise additional funds for our charities. For information on the golf tournament, inquire at any local Peoples Bank location and check out our services while you're there! We are here to serve you and the community. Thank you from The Peoples Bank to all who help make our charity fund raisers a success. We couldn't do it without your support.

Lady Tigers win 5-3; OLA clinches division title

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Bay High Lady Tigers remained in a three-way tie for first place in girls softball in Division 8 Class 4A with Gautier and D'Iberville. The Lady Tigers, however, have finished their regular season division schedule. They now await the outcome the final two games for the Lady Warriors. If D'Iberville wins both games, then the Lady Warriors will advance to the first round of the state playoffs. If the Lady Warriors lose one of their last two division games, the Lady Tigers would be in as the second place team.

The venerable coaching legend Fred Weems assists with the Bay High Lady Tigers program. He talked about the difficulty in seeing the ball coming at you from just 40-feet away and how the Lady Tigers have worked hard to be successful. He also added that is has something to do with the way they wear their hair. Not a strand is in their face because if so, it would be difficult to see that ball whizzing at them.

The Lady Tigers held off the Lady Yellow Jackets on Friday, April 4, with a 5-3 decision. The Lady Yellow Jackets took an early lead when Bay High threw some wild pitches to get runners in scoring position. St. Martin had one runner touch the plate for an early 1-0 lead.

After Sara Gilmore and the Lady Tigers settled down from the rattle, the bats came alive for Bay High. In the bottom of the fourth inning, sophomore Kendra Reed cracked a 2-run double to give Bay High the lead 2-1. The hit scored Brittney Johnson and Sara Favre. Later in the inning, Sarah LaFontaine crossed home plate on a wild pitch to make the score after four innings 3-1.

Bay High added two more runs in the bottom of the fifth with two outs to make the score 5-1. Sara Favre reached on a single followed by an RBI double from LaFontaine. Whitney Favre followed that with an RBI triple to make the score 5-1.

St. Martin scored twice in the top of the sixth inning which made the final tally.

Katie Barrett came in for the save in the top of the seventh inning for Bay High. Barrett, who is just a seventh-grader, faced just four batters and didn't throw a called ball.

Bay High head coach Debbie Triplett stated, "Our closer, Katie Barrett, came in and did a fine job. She did what we needed her to do and that was to throw strikes. Sara Gilmore pitched well. She tallied 7 strikeouts but sometimes she tries to throw too hard and a pitch gets away from her which is what happened in the sixth inning. At the plate, we hit the ball hard tonight. Our hits came when we had runners on base and we ran well."

The Lady Tigers now sport an 8-5 record overall.

In other softball action during the week, OLA blanked Resurrection 11-0 on Monday, March 31. Rachel Wright got the win on the mound as she pitched a three-hitter. Rachel Cuevas was perfect at the plate going 3-for-3 with a double. OLA is now 11-3 overall and 6-0 in the division.

On April 3, OLA defeated Sumrall 13-7 with Wright getting the win on the mound. Katherine Milner went 3-for-3 with a triple and 4 RBIs. Julie Reboul was 3-for-5 with a double and 3 RBIs while Wright helped her own cause with three hits in four trips.

Hannah Allen and Ashley Mayley had triples in the game. Jordan Fisher had 2 RBIs in the game for the Crescents. The win over Sumrall improved the record to 12-3 overall and a perfect 7-0 in the division. The win clinched the division title for OLA. The Crescents also won the junior varsity contest 5-3.

Earlier in the week, Bay High defeated Vancleave 6-2 in 9 innings. Brittney Johnson was the winning pitcher and had 5 K's. Whitney Favre had two hits with a triple in the game.

Hancock blanks Pass in softball

The Hancock Lady Hawks shutout the visiting Pass Christian Lady pirates 10-0 Thursday. Kate Sullivan was the winning pitcher with six strikeouts in the five inning contest. Jessica Dubuisson continued her hot streak with the bat hitting three doubles. Summer Seymour and Jennifer Ladner also each connected for a double. Heather Ladner had a single.

In the junior varsity game, Hancock won 6-0 in four innings. The winning pitcher was Julie Hyatt with three strikeouts. Brittany Lampton hit a triple and single. Tara Mosely also had a triple. Katrina Zanhiser, Ashley Dunhurst, and Destiny Pascual each added a single to help with the win.

Vancleave Bulldogs sweep relays

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Vancleave Bulldogs ran past the competition to sweep the annual Rock Relays held on Thursday, April 3, at the Brother Philip Memorial Athletic Complex.

The junior high girls division also had several top performers from the area schools. Emma Craft of Hancock Middle School won the discus with a throw of 68'2" and placed second in the shot put. Courtney Moran of Hancock placed third in the shot put.

Shandrea Lee of Hancock won the 100m dash while Jenny Donlin of OLA won the 1600m run in 6:58.31. Donlin also finished runner-up in the 800m run.

Nicole Zulli of Hancock won the 800m run in 3:05 and placed second in the high jump. Kate Lobrano of OLA rounded out the top three in the 800m run.

Mary Rittiner of OLA won the 400m dash and placed third in the 200m dash. Hancock placed third in the 1600m and 800m relays. They placed second in the 400m relay. OLA took second place in the 1600m relay.

Shelby Wild of OLA placed second in the 400m dash while Sara Kyle of Hancock took the bronze in the 1600m run.

Teresia Waribay placed second in the 100m low hurdles followed by teammate Ashley Bissell in third place.

The next set of track meets is scheduled for Wednesday, April 9. St. Stanislaus is hosting the Sun Coast Conference Meet for junior high while Hancock is hosting their annual conference meet for both the junior high and the senior high.

Boys & Girls Club Golf Tournament this week

Golfers throughout the Gulf Coast are preparing for the 4th Annual Boys and Girls Club Golf Tournament at The Oaks Golf Club in Pass Christian, April 10-11. The tournament is hosted by the Pass Christian Unit of the Boys and Girls Clubs of the Gulf Coast and benefits the Pass Christian Unit.

This major fundraiser for the Pass Christian Unit includes a 9-Hole Individual Tournament on Thursday, April 10 and an 18-Hole Scramble on Friday, April 11. Over 100 players participated in the last year's tournament, winning a variety of prizes donated by industries and businesses throughout the coastal area. More importantly, the tournament raised over $17,000 to help the Boys and Girls Club program in Pass Christian.

The Pass Christian Unit opened in June 2000 and has served over 563 registered members and an additional 1,000-plus youth through outreach in the areas of character and leadership development, health and life skills, education and career development, the arts, sports, fitness and recreation.

"Entry fees for the tournament vary," said Wilson, "because not everyone who wants to be a part of the tournament is available both days of the tournament. We recognize that by offering different ways to participate in the tournament, more people who want to be a part of the tournament can do so."

Fees for both days of the tournament per player are $125. For the 18-Hole Scramble on April 11, cost is $100 per player. The cost per player for the 9-Hole Tournament only on April 10 is $40 per player. For those who want only to participate on a social basis, a ticket is available that provides dinner Thursday and Lunch Friday of the tournament. Cost of the social ticket is $20. All players in the full day event on Friday, in addition to being eligible for prizes, will also receive a tournament golf shirt.

The DeLisle Cooking Club will be preparing the meals for the tournament again this year. The cooking club, made up of DuPont DeLisle employees, is a popular preparer of barbecue and "all the trimmings." Said Wilson, who is project group manager at DuPont DeLisle, "The cooking club takes this tournament very, very seriously and really go the extra mile to provide great meals for all the participants."

Tournament sponsorships still are available and range from a Bronze sponsorship at $200 to Titanium Sponsor at $2,500. DuPont DeLisle and Mississippi Power are the tournament's two major sponsors currently, notes Wilson who says that sponsorship "provides the opportunity to give back to the community in a very real way."

For further information, contact Wilson at 228-255-2180 or Lester Mitchell at 374-2330.

On the girls side, Picayune scored 132 points to win followed by Vancleave with 110, Poplarville 69, Long Beach 49, St. John 43, Hancock 42, Bay High 14, and Pass High 13 points.

Bay High wins in tennis

The Bay High Tigers blanked Gautier 5-0 Thursday in high school tennis. Jared Dunklin won the boys singles match, 6-3, 6-1; Stephanie Reed took the girls single contest 6-1, 6-1; in boys doubles, Chris Magee and Brandon Slade won by forfeit; in girls doubles Kelly Callahan and Hannah Johnson won 6-6, 7-6; and in mixed doubles, Jacquelin Fouasanon and Marquez Singleton won 6-0, 6-1.

The Tigers defeated the Picayune Maroon Tide 5-1 Tuesday. In boys singles, Jared Dunklin won 6-0, 6-0; in girls singles, Stephanie Reed won; Chris Magee and Brandon Slade won 7-6, 6-3 in boys doubles; in girls doubles, Picayune won 5-7, 6-1, 6-2; and in mixed doubles, Bay High's Jacqueline Fouasanon and Marquez Singleton won 6-3, 6-0.

Bay High is 6-1 on the season and will face cross-town rivals Our Lady Academy and St. Stanislaus Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

Tigers keep hopes alive

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Bay High baseball team dropped to a tie for second place with the Vancleave Bulldogs after Bay High suffered a 5-0 shutout loss to Vancleave on Thursday, April 3. On Friday, the Tigers rebounded for a narrow 1-0 win over Gautier to preserve their tie with Vancleave.

Nathan Morris of Vancleave pitched a two-hitter in the win over the Tigers on Thursday. Aaron Morris was the losing pitcher in the contest.

In Friday's game against Gautier, there was not much offensive firepower. The Tigers got their run early in the game when Guy Alleman drew a walk. Skip Ladner hit an RBI single that scored Alleman for the go-ahead run.

Brandon Strong got the win on the mound for the Tigers tossing a two-hitter and fanning 15 Gator batters.

Bay High head coach Mike Weems commented, "We were not hitting the ball tonight. We did not come ready to play with enthusiasm or intensity."

The win brings the Tigers' record up to 14-5 overall and 9-2 in the division.

Mollie Nunez of Hancock was the top area performer finishing second in the 400m dash. Petra Varkova of Hancock had third place finishes in the 3200m run and the 1600m run.

Lady Hawks' teammate Erica Moran placed third in the discus and the 400m relay team from Hancock took third, as well. The top finishers for Bay High was the 1600m relay team of Rachel Minear, Miki Rogers, Jessica Gardner, and Darlene Lee which crossed the line in third place.

In the boys division, the meet came down to the last race. And, in the end it wasn't even a race. Poplarville scored 96 points to edge Picayune for the title. The Maroon Tide tallied 92 points. Vancleave scored 77 points followed by Hancock and Bay High who tied with 55 points. Long Beach scored 43 points, St. John 42 points, and Pass Christian 30 points.

The top area finisher in the boys division was Nick Narvez of Hancock who won the high jump with a leap of 5'10".

Michael Gros of Bay High placed second in the shot put and Darron Boone of Hancock finished third in the long jump.

On the track, Doug Schmidt of Bay High finished second in the 3200m run while Monroe Jordan placed third in the 200m dash. Michael Payton of Hancock took second in the 300m intermediate hurdles and Pass Christian's Chad Musgrove crossed the tape in third place.

The 400m relay team of Greg Lemier, Lorenzo Lewis, Odie Clemons, and Monroe Jordan took second and third in the 800m relay.

Myron Fairley of Hancock placed third in the 100m dash while Norman Wilkes took home the bronze in the 400m dash. Alex Toups of Hancock placed third in the 800m run and the 1600m relay team of Lewis, Wilkes, Michael Rogers, and Lemier of Bay High placed third.

Players -- Olde Towne

Their goals are to create more opportunities for audiences to experience live theater and to create more opportunities for participants to develop their talents in all aspects of theater arts.

The Olde Towne Players also want to culminate dance, music, visual arts and puppetry into a coalition of the arts.

"I've been wanting to start a new theater for years," Ray Kutos said. "It seems like now is the time to do it. There's been an explosion of the arts all over the Coast."

Kutos said this theater company will approach theatrical productions in a way that provides the artists with the opportunity to broaden their skills.

"We're interested in an intimate and imaginative theater," he said.

Unlike most community theaters, the Olde Towne Players will not be wedded to a particular location.

This will allow them freedom in choosing their productions.

"We're stressing original, new work," Kutos said. "We can be more experimental because we don't have a building to support."

"Many community theaters focus on audiences and pick plays that are sure audience-pleasers," said Nan Ehrbright in a press release. "That's all well and good, but we believe actors, directors, set designers, costumers and makeup people deserve the opportunity to stretch their skills via challenging productions."

Kutos said the company plans to offer a regular season of children's theater. This will include puppetry and shows for and with children.

Another type of performances to be offered will be reading theater. This will give people who do not have time to rehearse for full-fledged productions the opportunity to experience acting.

Kutos said the new company also hopes to work with Bay St. Louis Little Theatre at some point.

The Olde Towne Players have planned their first production for October. Kutos said the company is in the process of adapting the book "Pearls: Myths and Memories of Hancock County" into a theatrical production. They have tentatively planned to stage the show at Serenity Gallery on Main Street.

For more information about the Olde Towne Players, contact Ray Kutos at 228-452-7761 or Nan Ehrbright at 228-467-5563.

Logo Contest

The Olde Towne Players are conducting a contest for artists to create the new theater company's logo.

The logo must represent the company's primary mission — to enhance live theater for the community. The theater company wants to give free reign to the artists' creativity, but wants the logo to include the company's name or initials.

Submissions, which may be dropped off at Serenity Gallery at 126 Main Street in Bay St. Louis, should be no larger than three inches by five inches.

The deadline for submitting logos is May 5. The winner will be announced at Serenity Gallery during the May 10 Second Saturday Artwalk.

For more information about the contest, contact Ray Kutos at 228-452-7761 or Nan Ehrbright at 228-467-5563.

Projects

the Hancock County Court House has resumed.

"We are glad to be moving forward, though we still have some unresolved issues," said contractor Hank Martinez, co-owner of GM&R Construction. "The men are working in the crawl space with protective suits and masks, which they have been trained to use for safety."

"We are very pleased with the work done," said architect Ed Wikoff.

Martinez said piping work in the crawl space is being completed along with framing, steel work and painting inside the building.

"We are also moving forward with plans for the elevator," he said.

Wikoff said that no new completion date has been set as yet. The original completion date was to be in March, he said, but delays will probably move that date until at least the end of the summer. Work was delayed when traces of Chlordane were found in the crawl space, spurring concern for workers health.

Waveland is in the midst of a revival of the downtown area. The Waveland City Hall, library branch, and civic center are all going through major overhauls. The Garfield Ladner Pier is being expanded and repaired after damage from last fall's storms.

City Hall has been on the list for renovations for quite some time, with most of the work being done to make the building ADA compliant.

But the building will receive a facelift too. Waveland City hall is actually older than the Hancock County Courthouse, said Wikoff, and has undergone numerous renovations over the years.

The work is going remarkably smoothly with no major delays, and should be finished before the end of the summer, he said. The building will house a new elevator for second floor access, new downstairs offices, new ADA compliant bathrooms, and a new kitchenette upstairs, he said.

The building will be painted in six colors. The main part of the building will be a corn meal yellow, shutters a deep gray green, railing, columns and wood trim will be off white, the front porch will be a deep dark green and the porch ceiling will be a light sky blue, Wikoff said.

The old Waveland School, now the civic center, has been structurally secured, said architect Allison Anderson. The plumbing and wiring have all been replaced, with new ADA compliant bathrooms added. A ramp from library side of the building to the parking lot was also added.

Asbestos flooring was removed from the auditorium.

A new roof was put on the back of the building and all the windows were replaced with replicas of the original wood windows in the building, said Mayor Tommy Longo.

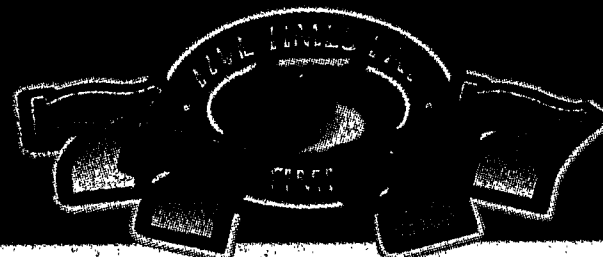

The first phase of work should be completed by the end of the month, said Anderson, with mainly interior repairs and cosmetic renovations remaining to be completed.

The Waveland Branch of the Hancock County Library is being more than doubled in size, to bring it up to state standards, said Longo.

Renovations will add, among other things a new computer education area, and courtyard on the south side of the building, he said, and of course bring the building up to ADA standards.

Garfield Ladner Pier will soon have another 200 feet of fishing space, as well as bathrooms and new pagodas. Damage caused by the storm to parking areas, railing and lighting are also being repaired. The pier was severely damaged by last fall's storms and has remained closed to the public since that time.

Sink or be Sunk

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza La Violette
laviolette@mail.datasync.com

FIRST ENCOUNTER

Editor's note: The following is an excerpt from the first chapter of Paul Estronza La Violette's new book.

The 9th of December 1814 opened as a clear, relatively warm, winter day. The first touches of morning light revealed three British warships: two frigates, Seahorse and Armide, and their smaller consort, the brig-sloop Sophie. The three were sailing close in to Dauphin Island, one of the long string of islands lying a short distance off the Gulf coasts of what are now the states of Mississippi and Alabama. To catch the light offshore winds, every sail that could be was set on each of the three ships and, with their many sails, the ships made a pretty picture in the early light as they glided through the calm Gulf waters.

They were not alone in using the winds, nor alone in the sea. Several frigate birds sailing high above the flotilla ignored the ships but used the same winds to take them to fishing places farther offshore. Closer to the surface, gulls trailed the ships, angling their wings to the winds to allow them to swoop down again and again to rescue scraps thrown from the ships' galleys.

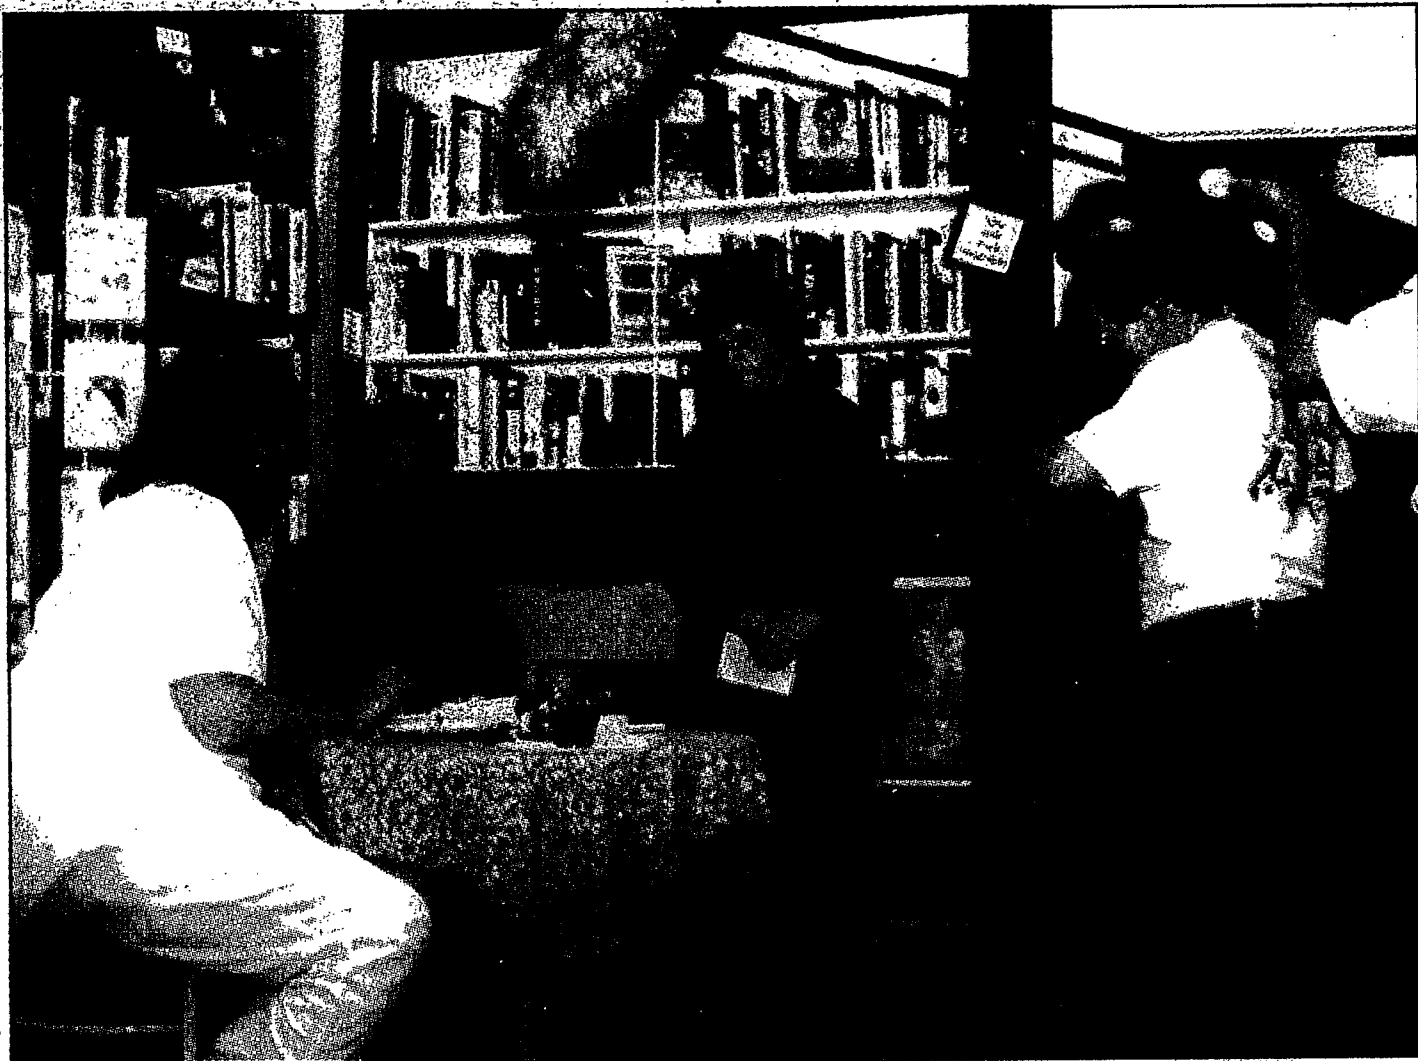

In the water beside at least one of the ships, porpoises surfed in the ship's bow wave, their swift moving bodies clearly visible in the transparent, blue-green water. Each tried to gain ascendancy in the wave; jostling one another for the optimum position to ride for brief moments the broiling white curve of water produced by the ship's progress.

On days like this, it was good to be at sea on a ship as neatly sailed as these, sailing off a shore like the sandy, pine-covered one that lay just to starboard of each ship. And a winter's morning, with its cool bright touch of newness, was the best time of day to be there.

Aboard the frigate, Seahorse, however, as well as aboard the other two war vessels, the ship's officers were ignoring the day's freshness.

They were more interested in what had been first disclosed, and then more clearly revealed by the increasing light of the morning. Crowded together as much as protocol would permit them to the starboard taffrail, the officers gazed across the narrow barrier of bright yellow sands of Dauphin Island to the waters of what is today called the Mississippi Sound.

Paul La Violette, second from left, and Sarah Foster, who illustrated the maps, sign copies of La Violette's book "Sink or Be Sunk" Thursday at Bookends in Bay St. Louis. A film crew from Mississippi ETV was there filming a segment about independent book stores in the state for the show "Mississippi Roads." Susan Dalgre, owner of Bookends, said the show should air in October.

Cover art from Paul Estronza La Violette's new book. The painting, entitled 'The Anglo-American Action on Lake Borgne in 1814,' and done by Lyde Hornbrook, is the property of the family of Fairfax Foster Bailey. The original painting is on permanent loan to the New Orleans Museum of Art.

There, the masts of two vessels were clearly visible. Sloop-rigged, the two had evidently been at anchor when first seen with just their masts and associated rigging jutting up in the purple light of the early day. But that had quickly changed when both vessels had slipped up their sails and, moving in unison, were now making a path through the waters inside the sound that lagged but slightly those of the British men-of-war on the Gulf side of the island.

There was a reason for the British officers' interest. The brightly colored flag and commissioning pennant streaming from the masts of each of the vessels indicated to the observers that the two vessels were United States Naval warships.

The path of the British and American vessels soon took them past the sand spit at the western end of Dauphin Island and, with this barrier removed, the hulls of the American vessels became visible.

Despite the sloop-rigging and the evident ease with which the American vessels moved through the shallow waters of the Sound, it was apparent from the awkward build of the American hulls that these were not fast boats.

One of the officers climbed the riggings with a glass and after examining in better detail both of the Americans from his higher elevation, shouted down his findings to the Seahorse's Post-Captain James Alexander Gordon. Acknowledging the call, Captain Gordon braced his wooden leg against a well-worn spot on the deck and raised his own glass to view the Americans. He studied the inverted image of the vessel captured by the lens and then satisfied, low-

Public libraries: Making a difference in Mississippi

National Library Week is April 6-12

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Libraries are making a difference in the communities they serve. And the Hancock County Library System invites Hancock Countians to come in and see the wealth of resources to be found at its branches during National Library Week, April 6-12.

This week marks the third year of a new, national, public awareness effort called The Campaign for America's Libraries. Sponsored by the American Library Association, the multi-year campaign is designed to remind the public that today's libraries are dynamic, modern community centers for learning, information and entertainment.

The campaign intends to increase awareness about the vibrancy and real value of today's libraries. The public education effort is a response to research that shows that while libraries are popular, they are often taken for granted. Research also indicated that while libraries are rooted in nearly every community, in schools, campuses and businesses across the country, they are often not visible. The campaign is designed to showcase public, school, academic and special libraries nationwide.

"Today's libraries are not the quiet places you remember" said Prima Plaque, library system director. "They are modern community centers for information, education and entertainment where the whole community comes together. From preschool story hour to homework help, from academic research to special collections, libraries are as Vibrant as ever."

"Libraries are truly unique. In person and online. Where else can you have access to nearly everything in print and on the Web and have the personal assistance of a librarian to help find what you are looking for?"

Plaque adds that librarians are experts in navigating through the clutter of information that's out there. "Librarians are really the ultimate search engine @ your library. If you need to find something, just ask."

A new service, Read it on the Road, provides library users with popular fiction and nonfiction titles in compact disc format. The program began in September, 2002, but more than 600 new titles have recently been added to the collection.

As part of the week-long celebration, refreshments will be served at all

Weddings

Schaefer, Jacobi wed in Bay ceremony

Amy Kathryn Schaefer of Diamondhead, Ms. and Kevin David Jacobi of Waveland, Ms., were united in marriage March 2, 2002 at 2:30 p.m. at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis, Ms. followed by a reception in the Community Center.

The Rev. Michael Tracey officiated.

The Bride is the daughter of Michael and Mary Ellen Schaefer of Diamondhead, Ms.

The groom's parents are Al and Sharon Jacobi of Waveland, Ms.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Soloist was Ron Crosby and Organist was Alana Rutledge.

For the occasion the bride's gown was designed by the Australian Designer Maggie Sottero. The two piece strapless corset gown in candlelight ivory was made of delustered satin with swirling satin stitched lace and guble beads embellishing the bodice and hemline. The A-line skirt with a chapel-length train and double tails finished off the exquisite design of the gown. The maids wore crepe two-piece gowns by Watters and Waters in Ocean Mist with bateau neck tops with narrow bias bow detail at the waist and slim floor length skirts. The bride carried a nosegay of ivory roses trimmed in fuchsia while the bridesmaids carried a complementary nosegay of roses in soft spring colors.

Maid of honor was Katherine Kennedy Regimbal. Bridesmaids include Ginger Felder Sharp, Renee Schaefer Mauffray, Julie Schaefer Taylor, Brandi Michelle Dedeaux, and Whitney Renee Jordan.

Flower girl was Kathryn Kidd and ring bearer was Hunter Felder.

Best man was Raymond Earl Kidd III; and grooms men included Brandon Aloysius Jacobi, John Zeb Felder II, Scott Richard Barnes, Daniel August Strong, and Scott Michael Schaefer; ushers included Preston John Mauffray, Darrin Douglas Rose, Morton Joseph Wright, and Frank James Letellier.

A Rehearsal Dinner was at Steve's Marina Restaurant, in Long Beach, Ms. A engagement party was given by the bride's parents. A Backyard Cookout Shower, A Room to Room Shower and a Bridal Shower were given by the bridal party, friends and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin D. Jacobi

The couple will reside in Diamondhead, Ms.

Howell- Wright

Stephanie Marie Howell of Waveland, MS and Travis Earl Wright of Ellenboro, NC were married March 22, 2003 at First Baptist Church in Dandridge, TN. Reverend Mike Casey and Reverend Phil Howard performed the ceremony.

The bride who was escorted by her father is the daughter of Bryan and Judy Howell of Waveland, MS. She is the granddaughter of Ralph and Ina Rose Williams of Kershaw, SC and Ruth Howell of Greer, SC.

The bride holds an undergraduate degree in Business Administration from the University of South Alabama and a Master of Arts degree in Christian Education from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

The groom is the son of Earl and Gail Wright of Ellenboro, NC. He is the grandson of Lee Roy and Irene Tesseniar of Bostic, NC and Mildred Wright of Ellenboro, NC. The groom holds an undergraduate degree in Chemistry from Gardner-Webb University and a Master of Divinity degree in Christian Education from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He is presently employed at First Baptist Church in Dandridge, TN as the Minister of Education and Outreach.

The Maid of Honor was Miss Lauren Hanson of Baton Rouge, LA. The bridesmaids were Miss

Stephanie Howell Wright

Brooke Griffith of New Orleans, LA; Miss Crystal Lancaster of Tigerville, SC; and Mrs. Kristie Roberts of New Orleans, LA.

The Best Man was Mr. Earl Wright of Ellenboro, NC. The groomsmen were Trey Wright, brother of the groom, from Ellenboro, NC; Eric Wilkie of Ellenboro, NC; and Billy Watkins of New Orleans, LA. Ushers were Eric Lefevers and Ron Malley, both from New Orleans, LA.

The flower girl was Miss Hannah Threatt from Florence, SC and the ring bearer was her brother, Master Walton Threatt.

After a wedding trip to St. Marys, GA the couple will reside in Jefferson City, TN.

ered it. Gordon had lost the leg in the Mediterranean in 1811, a time when the British were actively clearing that sea of all French warships. He had been in command of the frigate, Active, and had given chase to a French frigate. During the chase, a 32-pound ball from the French warship had smashed into the quarterdeck of Active, the ball cleanly taking away his leg just after doing the same to a young seaman standing a short distance away.

After a long convalescence, he had been deemed to be again fit for sea duty and given Seahorse. Gordon had been happy to have Seahorse to command. She had shown herself to be a good ship with a good crew of men and officers and in the two years since, he had used her well.

Yet there had been a change. It was a subtle one, but it was there, and if no one else noticed, he did.

He was still quite willing to move ships and have the men aboard them do the work and do it well. He had proven his abilities again and again in several campaigns. In one of these that had taken place this same year along the eastern seaboard of the United States, he had arduously warped Seahorse and a small British squadron under his command up the Potomac against wind and current until finally, under the very guns of Fort Washington, had taken the fort.

But now he was starting to realize how much he loved his ship and being at sea. He loved days like this and felt revitalized by the rolling feel of the ship as it moved through the blue-green Gulf waters, heeled over ever so lightly by the press of the wind on its sails.

The feeling went deep. It was he alone of all the officers on the deck that had glanced up to watch the dark silhouettes of the frigate birds as they sailed by high overhead. It was an action and a feeling, he realized, that took some of the sharp competitive edge off that which was needed for command of a ship in war. It was a change that might well keep him from making admiral.

He noted that the voices of his officers standing a short distance away had risen slightly from their decorous murmur of a few moments ago. A rather heated debate had started among them on what type vessel could be as ungainly as the ones that were following them.

"They are gunboats, Mister Pratt," he said addressing his first lieutenant who had been standing to one side of the group.

The abrupt remark from their Captain produced a long silence in which the officers looked at the distant American naval vessels with renewed interest. Now that they knew what the two vessels were, they began to look at their American shadows more closely, doing so with looks that, to put a better word on it, was close to pity.

Although heavily armed, gunboats were actually no more than large cutters. They were an American innovation designed to carry large guns and operate in shallow coastal waters. Because of their heavy armament and shallow draft, they were known to be terrible vessels to maneuver and even worse to sail. The two they were looking at were doing so in the shallow waters of the long sound that lay inside the 70-mile string of islands of which Dauphin Island was the string's eastern-most end.

Aware that the American vessels were beyond the range of his guns, Captain Gordon vocally turned the attention of his first lieutenant to having Seahorse, as well as the other ships of the group, make the best time moving west along the series of sandy islands. His words were short and spoken in the same tone that had announced the type of vessel they had been watching. But they were effective.

Lieutenant Pratt instantly issued a string of belabored orders and Gordon had the satisfaction of having to move his leg to a new position on the deck as the ship increased its heel slightly to comply with his first lieutenant's curtly worded instructions and the watch's quick compliance. The other officers, taking the unspoken hint of their captain's stance, quickly thought of duties that required their presence elsewhere on the ship.

Standing alone except for the watch, Gordon glanced again at the Americans. He didn't like what he had seen of the two gunboats and mentally braced himself to have to include their presence in his report to Vice Admiral Cochrane at the British fleet anchorage some fifty miles to his west. It was news that would not be welcome.

Before doing so, however, he had to finish his present assignment, which was to make a visual reconnaissance of these coastal islands to see how well they matched the slightly dated charts that were in the fleet's possession.

These were a long chain of five narrow islands that lay some eight to ten miles off the mainland. The islands formed a protective barrier for the coast, absorbing the brunt of the hurricanes that periodically ravage the northern Gulf of Mexico. Where the Seahorse sailed on the south side of the islands, the water was the normal deep blue-green of the Gulf. On the islands' north side, the water was a tea-color characteristic of a shallow, active estuary.

The estuary was an elongated coastal sea approximately one hundred forty miles long. It reached from an inlet on its eastern side that connected it with Mobile Bay to a thin strip of delta land in the west that separates it from the Mississippi River. It was a narrow sea over this long distance, averaging eight miles in width and, most importantly for the British, was shallow with less than fifteen feet deep in most places.

The charts that the British navy had of the area in 1814 were as good as most of the regional charts available at the time and, as the ships moved along the coast of each of the barrier islands, Captain Gordon became increasingly satisfied that the charts he had in his possession were accurate enough for the needs of the operations planned for the vast fleet now assembling to their west.

While not as familiar with these waters as those of the Atlantic seaboard, the northern Gulf was not unknown to the British Navy. This knowledge had been updated considerably in the last two years of the present war. During this period, British warships had worked these waters hard and a number of the ships in Admiral Cochrane's gathering fleet had engaged in close-in military operations along the coast.

This was especially true for one ship in Gordon's present squadron: the brig-sloop, Sophie, and its captain, Commander Nicholas Lockyer.

Four months earlier, Lockyer had taken Sophie to accompany the Hermes, as part of the ill-fated attack on Fort Bowyer at the mouth of Mobile Bay. The exchange of gunfire between the two British ships and the American shore batteries had been exceptionally heavy and the battered Hermes had become a drifting hulk that finally ran aground and eventually blew up.

Commander Lockyer had stayed with Hermes as long as possible. When it was apparent Hermes was truly lost and the fort had turned the concentration of its heavy fire on Sophie, Lockyer had been forced to withdraw to save his ship.

Although the results of the action had not been Lockyer's fault, Captain Gordon knew that he still smarted heavily from the defeat. Indeed, at Pensacola, Gordon had had an opportunity to see Sophie up close and had noted that the ship still showed numerous signs of the disastrous Fort Bowyer engagement. Lockyer's wounds were not as obvious, but Gordon knew they were every bit as deep.

The three British ships moved westward along the southern shore of each island in the long string, seeing in turn Petit Bois and then Horn. The main part of the islands were formidable, with large dunes of bright sand that ranged in height from twenty to fifty feet and further topped with seemingly impenetrable forests of tall pine trees. However, like Dauphin Island, each of the islands had at its western end a long, low spit of sand. As the ships moved past the low spits of Petit Bois and then Horn, Captain Gordon could see into the Sound.

He particularly studied the passes between each of the islands. These were fairly large, averaging two to three miles in width, and, as Gordon noted by changes in the color of the bottom as seen through the water, each pass contained several tidally-scoured, deep channels. He mused on the possibility that these channels might be deep enough to allow a ship to enter a short way into the sound proper.

Sophie lay slightly aft of Seahorse and, because of her shallower draft, a little closer in to the island passes. Lockyer, Gordon realized, had edged his ship closer to get a better look at the trailing gunboats. He toyed with the idea of releasing Lockyer to take Sophie in to possibly exchange a few shots with the Americans. Lockyer might well be lucky and score a few hits. Something to at least brush back their insolent presence.

However, any such effort would have to be done on the fly; otherwise the gunboats, despite their clumsy appearance, would easily slip out of range.

As he more closely examined the channels, he realized that such an action would be too dangerous. The channels, while deep, were narrow and probably did not extend very far back into the Sound. Any vessel using such a channel, would best do so slowly, taking soundings as it went. Lockyer had enough problems and losing his Sophie while chasing a couple of inshore gunboats was not one Gordon wished to add to that list. He remembered too well the fate of Hermes.

It was probably just as well; at the rate his group of ships were moving, they were leaving the slower gunboats behind and he was anxious to come up on the British fleet well before nightfall and assume his anchor position among the other vessels while there was still light.

Following these thoughts, he glanced up at the sails. The wind, he noted, had shifted slightly and the sails had not been adjusted properly to the slight change. He was about to turn and say something on this to Pratt when his first lieutenant's voices roared a reprimand at the officer of the deck. In moments the sails were adjusted, the ship assumed a more satisfying slant and the riggings changed their hum to a slightly higher octave. Satisfied that all was well, Gordon motioned for his steward to bring out his breakfast.

Almost seven hours later, as the ships passed the mid-portion of Ship Island, Gordon was aroused from his discussion with Pratt of one of their area charts by a hail from the lookout in Seahorse's masthead.

"Deck! Sails! Directly ahead!"

The officer of the deck turned to one of the midshipmen on watch, "Go aloft and tell us how many and what, Mister White."

Although his captain was standing just a short distance away and must have heard the same hail from the masthead, the officer turned and reported in a clear voice, "Lookout report sails dead ahead, Captain."

Gordon murmured, "Very well" and looked up at the young midshipman, actually a boy of about sixteen, racing up the riggings. He envied the boy, not just because of his agility, but his youth and the promise of everything that lay before him. The boy's father was a good friend and had asked him to take him on as a midshipman, a novice officer. It was a common request and had been the way Gordon had entered the navy years before. Gordon, watching the distant figure, was glad that he had agreed; the boy was turning out to be an excellent seaman and a promising officer.

In moments, the boy's voice called down, informing the deck that there were three sails ahead of them in a loose group: vessels very similar to the ones that had been tracking them inside the islands. In a few minutes, the tops of the sails of the American vessels were visible to the officers on the quarterdeck.

Gordon looked at them with his glass; three more gunboats. He lowered the glass and studied them for a few more moments. The three vessels were located a little beyond the entrance of the pass between Ship and Cat Islands. They had evidently come out to scout the British ships anchored to their south. He then turned and looked toward the islands.

Youth Leadership Program at work

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Coast Electric Power Association selected Britneye Farrell, Deven Fejka and Ashley Gipson, students at Hancock High School, to Participate in the Electric Power Associations of Mississippi Youth Leadership Program in Jackson on February 26-28. The Association took part in a statewide youth leadership program to better acquaint the future leaders of our communities with cooperative philosophy.

The students were chosen based on essays explaining their views of how cooperatives have been successful business builders in today's world and their impact on future opportunities. Seventy-three students participated in the cooperative essay contest. Ten finalists were selected based on the essays. Personal interviews were conducted to choose the final three.

At the three day workshop, the students learned all the aspects of leadership, participated in team-building exercises, heard presentation given by government leaders and attended educational sessions about the electric utility industry.

Deven and Ashley were selected to represent Coast Electric in Washington D.C. in June at the Youth Tour sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. More than 1,200 high school juniors come together from across the nation to learn about the city, government, cooperatives and rural electrification at this yearly program.

Point Island Garden Club

The Point Island Garden Club met on March 11, 2003 at 2:00 p.m. in the Sewer Board Building.

The president announced the Nominating Committee to prepare the Ballot for the up-coming year. The members were asked to bring suggestions for officers to the April meeting.

The members were asked to give the numbers and names of trees which they have planted the past year for the Mississippi Million Tree Project.

The Park Maintenance Chairperson announced that she had tagged the Crepe Myrtle bushes and the new plants to prevent them being cut when the Park is mowed.

The March Garden of the Month was awarded to Hester and Prima Plaque' at 330 Poindexter Drive.

The Club voted to give a donation to Beauvoir toward the Botanical Garden Project to become a Patron Donor. The President announced that in May or June there is a trip planned to tour the Quail Farm in Louisiana with members of a Garden Club in New Orleans. Husbands and friends are invited.

The final details were discussed for the Spring Pilgrimage Tour. The Pass Christian Isles Tour will be Friday, March 14, 2003, 10-12 Noon. On Thursday the County maintenance crew will tidy up the streets in the area. On Friday there will be 3 deputies assigned to the area to assist with the traffic flow and security.

The next meeting will be at 2:00 p.m. on April 1, 2003 in the Sewer Board Building.

Facts About The BIBLE

GIFT GIVING IN BIBLICAL TIMES

IN THE BIBLE, GIFTS HAVE BEEN GIVEN FOR COUNTLESS REASONS. BY FATHERS TO SONS, BY A DAUGHTER ON HER MARRIAGE, BY THE BRIDEGROOM TO THE FATHER OF THE BRIDE, BY A FELLOW MEN OUT OF GOOD WILL OR TO SECURE A FAVOR. AS A CASE IN POINT, TAKE JACOB'S GIFTS TO HIS BROTHER ESAU. JACOB, AFTER YEARS OF SEPARATION FROM HIS BROTHER, WAS FACED WITH THE GRIM FACT HE MUST MEET ESAU WHOM HE HAD WRONGED IN THE PAST. HERE IS WHAT JACOB GAVE: "TWO HUNDRED SHE-GOATS, AND TWO HUNDRED EWES, AND TWENTY RAMS, THIRTY MILCH CAMELS WITH FORTY KINE, AND TEN BULLS, TWENTY SHE-ASSES, AND TEN FOALS." THAT'S SAID TO BE A BIG WAY! THE GIFTS REQUIRED TO BARTER FOR A WIFE WERE ALREADY PREPARED. WHEN ONE REALIZES THAT THE CONCERNED FATHER OF THE BRIDEGROOM HAD TO BE TRANSPORTED.....

FOR SUCH A JOURNEY,
THERE IS MUCH TO BE DONE!STURDY CAMELS ARE LOADED WITH

Lent returns us to basics

Does it make any sense to you that life comes through death? Does this claim sound self-contradictory, ridiculous, preposterous? What if we add that there can be no regeneration of life without some form of death? And what if we went on to say that parts of us die and regenerate every moment?

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Jesus puts it this way: "Amen, amen, I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls to the ground and dies, it remains just a grain of wheat; but if it dies, it produces much fruit. Whoever loves his life loses it, and whoever hates his life in this world will preserve it for eternal life." (John 12:24-25)

I must admit that I do not hate my life. Quite to the contrary, I love my life in this world. In spite of all the hassles, problems, difficulties, sufferings, reverses, disappointments and failures, I find life enormously interesting, inviting, intriguing, engrossing and inclusive of everything good.

So, what to do? By loving life, am I in opposition to the teaching of Jesus? Are you? What does Jesus really mean here? That we are strictly forbidden to love and enjoy life? Jesus gives us the other side of what he means in John 10:10: "I came so that they might have life and have it to the full."

There you have it. Putting the two statements of Jesus together, it is easy to understand that hating one's life in this world does not mean stifling good feelings about life and its wonders. It does mean avoiding selfish, mercenary attachment to the physical aspects of life which neglects the spiritual.

By using the very abrasive and offensive word "hate", Jesus snaps us to attention, yet obviously does not mean hate in the conventional sense.

What he does clearly mean is, no matter what you love or how much you love it, even life itself, you had better not put anything or anyone before Jesus.

In fact, Jesus wants us to be live wires in all areas and at all levels of our activities, completely consumed by the joys and wonders of life according to God's plan. Way back in the second century, St. Irenaeus put it best: "The glory of God is a human being fully alive." Now that is indeed John 10:10.

After saying all that, it nevertheless remains true that in order to live we must die continually every moment of our life. How can that be? Our human body is composed of about 100 trillion cells which comprise and shape our skin, muscles, bones, tendons, ligaments, hair and nerves.

Since 300 million of our cells die every minute, they must be regenerated if we are to live.

How they regenerate depends on the kinds and quality of food we ingest.

If foods are not weakened or degenerated by animal cholesterol or intense heat used in cooking, premium fuel is supplied to our cells, enabling them to reproduce almost perfectly. Otherwise, they regenerate into wild cells which, as we know, are defective, pre-cancerous cells headed for illness and death.

So rigorous is the connection between our food/fuel intake and the quality of our cell regeneration, that we feel an almost immediate improvement in our skin, muscles and blood condition when we adopt a high-quality food regimen as our permanent way of life. I am a witness to this!

In my own case, the muscle power in my legs had waned considerably, forcing me to labor going up steps and even descending them. Always an athlete, I had been accustomed to do an up-and-down squat on one leg only, to walk and run swiftly, and to leap high into the air. Suddenly, I was grounded, reduced to walking stiffly, treading lightly, and at times limping. Claudication, a Latin word denoting limping, is the medical term for such stiffness in walking and general movement. Mine had begun to set in by little and little after I turned 63.

Beginning my non-animal-product food regimen at the age of 66, I was able to observe positive changes in my body in three weeks when my fingers lost all their pain and soreness. I could feel sporadic twinges of healing all along the way, but it was not until eight months that all the muscle pains, stiffness and weakness were completely removed and healed. In effect, the individual defective cells had died and were replaced by healthy cells at the rate of 300 million a minute.

Further punctuating this curious reality is the dynamic effect of exercise on our body. By killing many extra millions of cells through muscular exertion, we accelerate our body's exchange from wild cells to healthy cells when we combine such exercise with a food regimen which shuns animal cholesterol.

The pace of our healing stays in step with the pace of our exercise and fuel. Thus, the teaching of Jesus about the dying/producing grain of wheat is valid across the board in nature, preeminently in our own body, itself a paradigm of the death/life cycle which takes place in our spiritual life.

Once more, it is evident that holistic living, eating, exercising and healing are one. Lent is usually viewed as a somewhat forbidding, doleful season which most people are eager to be done with. But in all reality, it is a time of very special blessing for both our bodies and our souls, which need to be checked out, disciplined and refocused on the ultimate meaning of death and life.

The "Word" for the Week

Your body and God's Word

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, St. Louis, MO 63179

Many people reject the notion of Christ shedding His blood to save sinners. Such a blood religion is no religion for gentlemen they say. But such people don't reject the example of Christ.

In fact, they are pleased to follow His example. And they pat themselves on the back when they do so. But as for the blood of Christ being given in payment for their sins, that's disgusting. Then there are those who do embrace the death of Christ for sinners. They glory in the cross. And they trust in Christ alone as the only adequate payment for their sins.

These people are on the way to heaven. But when you ask them for whom Christ died, their answer is that He died for everyone. He died for all! And these people will not accept any other answer. All always means all and that's that! But what does the Bible tell us?

Jesus Himself said, "The Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many" (Mark 10:45).

This was in keeping with the Old Testament prediction where God said, "My Servant will justify many" (Isaiah 53:11).

One thing is clear. These verses talk about many and not all. And the fact of the matter is, we know, from our common experience, that not all people believe in Christ as a ransom payment for sin. I began by talking about such people. And so, does Christ justify all people? No, Christ does not give all people right standing before God.

In the end, there are people who must pay the just penalty due to them for their own sins. Hell awaits such people. The words of Christ stand, He came "as a ransom for many." And the words of Isaiah stand, "My Servant will justify many." Are you one of the many for whom Christ died?

Confederate Memorial Day at Beauvoir

THE SEA COAST ECHO
The Jefferson Davis Home and Presidential Library will be celebrating Confederate Memorial Day on Saturday, April 26, 2003. This event is sponsored by the Mississippi Division, Sons of Confederate Veterans and Beauvoir and consists of an Old South Picnic and Memorial Service.

The activities begin at 12:00 pm on the Lawn of Beauvoir House with the Old South Picnic. Plates, utensils and soft drinks will be provided.

Participants are asked to bring a covered dish or two to add to the bounty of the potluck. Lawn chairs and blankets may also be brought to the event, as seating is limited.

The memorial service will begin at 2:00pm at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and Confederate Cemetery at Beauvoir. The service will include period music, military salutes and floral tributes. The featured speaker will be Jeffrey Massey, the Commander General of the Military Beauvoir, the Jefferson Davis Home and Presidential Library, will host a celebration of Confederate Memorial Day on Saturday, April 26.

Order of the Stars and Bars. Historians generally trace the origins of the first Confederate Memorial Day graves in Friendship Cemetery by the ladies of Columbus, Mississippi in 1866. This custom was quickly adopted throughout the South. It became recognized as a Mississippi state holiday in 1906. This observance at Beauvoir of Confederate Memorial Day is one of hundreds held throughout the springtime across the South, to commemorate the valor and sacrifice of the Confederate soldier.

Confederate Memorial Day activities are free and open to the public. The potluck begins at noon with the memorial service beginning at 2pm. Regular admission is charged for entrance into Beauvoir House and museum buildings. For more information, call (228) 388-9074 or 1-(800) 570-3818.

Riverfest celebrates 16 years of family fun by day and fabulous funk by night

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Music hits the street April 11& 12 at the 16th Annual Riverfest in downtown Vicksburg.

This two-day street party features family fun by day, and world-class funk by night, with 11 bands appearing on two separate stages.

This year's classic rock and R&B bands include nationally renowned groups such as the Atlanta Rhythm Section and Shenandoah and back by popular demand is Robert "Duke" Tillman who brought all of Vicksburg to its feet during last year's Fourth of July Celebration. To top this music feast, there will be regional and local food vendors galore serving chicken on a stick and crawfish along with all of your other family favorites.

On Saturday, local and state bands, featuring the always-popular USM Jazz band, provide Riverfeststyle fun throughout the day. Other daytime activities include sidewalk sales, an incredible variety of fun foods, original arts-and crafts, pony rides, the "space jump," cliff-climbing, face-painting, adopt-a-pet, and much, much more.

Primary presenters include Ameristar, Cellular South, Harrah's, and Isle of Capri.

This year's Riverfest excitement kicks off Friday evening at 7 P.M. Tickets are available downtown at Paper Plus and at Toot's Grocery beginning April 1st or at the gate.

Adult tickets are $10 for Friday night and $15 for Saturday night. Tickets for children 12 and under are $5 for Friday and Saturday nights; and as always there is no admission for daytime activities.

For more information, visit www.riverfestms.com or call 601-218-1363.

Celebrity Scoop

Malina Williams

By John Crook

© Zap2it

As Showtime's dramatic hit "Soul Food" launches its fourth season Wednesday, April 9, the spotlight is sharply on Malinda Williams and her vivacious character, beauty salon owner Tracy "Bird" Van Adams.

In the first two episodes of the new season, Bird finds herself facing life-changing crises: an obsessed old flame who is stalking her, and an unexpected pregnancy that has hubby Lem ecstatic and Bird feeling ambivalent.

No sane woman would want to find herself in situations such as these, yet they are catnip for an actress like Williams who revels in showing multiple facets of her character.

"That's the joy of doing a series, because you can revisit the character week after week, and we all have good days and bad days in real life," says Williams, an NAACP Image Award nominee for her "Soul Food" work. "In films, you have a limited time to tell the entire story, and, for some reason, African-American women don't seem to get a lot of on-screen time.

"When our show won an Image Award, it was very important to all of us, although I had said early on that we would win it. We know there are few projects that explore African-American family life in the kind of wonderful detail that we are afforded."

After earning praise for capturing an aspect of black family life unexplored elsewhere, "Soul Food" takes on more hot-button topics this season.

"I have complete faith in our writers," Williams says. "I was worried about the pregnancy episode, but it doesn't offer any quick or cheap answers. Bird reaches a hard, painful decision that may come back to haunt her later this season."

Born: Sept. 24, 1975, in Germany; grew up in Plainfield, N.J.

Art imitates life: Like Tracey "Bird" Van Adams, Williams is the youngest of three sisters and the mother of a young son. She also worked in a beauty salon prior to becoming a full-time actress.

Marital status: Divorced from actor Mekhi Phifer ("E.R.").

TV debut: a 1987 guest appearance on "The Cosby Show."

Movie credits: "An Invited Guest," "Dancing in September," "The Wood," "High School High," "A Thin Line Between Love and Hate."

Goal: "I just want to portray African-American women accurately, because that is all I represent — not necessarily positively or negatively, just correctly."

'Homeless to Harvard' charts a story of courage

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Harvard student Liz Murray is interested in filmmaking, so one wonders why she didn't pick a school known more for that, like NYU, USC or UCLA. "It's not like I was picking from a list of colleges," she says. "And I wouldn't turn down a full scholarship at Harvard."

The story of that scholarship and the extraordinary girl who won it is chronicled in the TV movie "Homeless to Harvard: The Liz Murray Story," premiering Monday, April 7, on Lifetime.

Even if Murray's story hadn't become a movie, it sounds like one. Born to loving but drug-addicted parents in New York, Murray and her sister were neglected, often left without the basics of food and warm clothes.

By the age of 15, Murray was homeless, having lost her mother to AIDS (Murray helped care for her) and with her father living on the streets.

Amazingly, Murray maintained her love for her parents and knew that, despite their problems, they believed in her. Moving from place to place, from one friend's home to another, and sometimes on the streets, Murray finished high school in two years.

She then applied for and won a New York Times scholarship for needy students, intended to help young people who had overcome obstacles. Murray was then accepted at Harvard.

Thora Birch ("American Beauty") plays Murray in "Homeless to Harvard," with Kelly Lynch ("Charlie's Angels") as her mother.

While attending Harvard is stressful enough, Murray also juggles a boyfriend, a book deal with Hyperion publishing, motivational speaking and doing TV interviews.

"People (are) like, 'When's the next movie? When you graduate from Harvard, are you going to be president?'" Murray says. "It's OK. It comes with the story. I never thought it would be this big. There's a lot to live up to, but the benefits are worth it."

Horoscope This Week

By Caroline James - Zap2it

April 6 through April 12, 2003

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

You might be tempted to splurge on a fancy technology item. Do it quickly - but commit to making only one purchase.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

We already know you're great, so you don't have to keep talking about it. But do share those ideas you have - with your superiors at work.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

If you've been meaning to make amends with someone, start slowly and wave a white flag. It's your move to make, Gemini.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

Your social life could pick up this week. Cancer. Accept only those invitations that really appeal to you. You are obligated to no one.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

Your career is the focus, especially if you can work closely with someone who can make your paycheck bigger.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

Pick up a book on something you've never studied, and you might find yourself captivated. Opportunities for learning abound.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

If you haven't started your taxes, shame on you. At any rate, you'll find yourself dealing with some sort of legal or financial paperwork.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

Whisper sweet nothings into your partner's ear to let them know you still care. Single? Attend a party or get-together later in the week.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

If you've got a health issue, be sure to get to the doctor sooner rather than later. It's only going to bother you until you get it resolved.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

You'll be creatively inspired, so put your ideas to good use and do something with all of that energy. Creativity allows you to cast off anxiety.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Home repair is on the agenda. If you've got nothing that needs fixing, consider some remodeling. It's high time you revamp.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Whatever you do, talk it out with someone you trust. You've got a lot of ideas floating around in that head of yours, but not all of them are wise.

First lady Laura Bush knows how to get to 'Sesame Street'

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

"Wubba wubba woo" is not the first phrase one might associate with Laura Bush. Yet that is precisely how millions of toddlers will be introduced to the first lady when she reads to children, Big Bird and Elmo on "Sesame Street" Tuesday, April 8, on PBS (check local listings).

In the episode, she reads aloud from a children's book called "Wubba Wubba Wool" and talks about the importance of reading and literacy.

"I loved being on 'Sesame Street,'" Mrs. Bush says by phone from the White House. "In a lot of ways, it was a dream come true. I watched many hours of 'Sesame Street' when my girls were little. The chance to be with Big Bird and Elmo was fun, and the chance to be on the 'Sesame Street' set was very fun."

First ladies Barbara Bush and Hillary Clinton also have appeared on the show. "If the first ladies are interested in education, we think it's important (to have them on)," executive producer Lewis Bernstein says. "The current Mrs. Bush is so dedicated to literacy, and we are so dedicated to it. We are still teaching literacy and mathematics and the basic skills."

The longest running children's show opens its 34th season Monday, April 7, featuring two new segments: "Global Grover" and "Global Thingy."

In "Global Grover," the perennially clueless Grover learns about children in other lands in live-action films. He travels to Russia and Mongolia, where he tries to make his furry blue feet do native dances. Grover also tries to balance wooden bowls on his head in Mongolia, and as his fans know, his clumsiness is certain to surface. "Global Thingy" is about a cartoon world that stresses the importance of empathy.

Twenty-six hourlong episodes are on tap for the new season.

Entertainer Wayne Brady, singer Sheryl Crow and journalist Diane Sawyer also are scheduled to appear this season, but it was Mrs. Bush's visit that prompted the most preparation. For a week prior to the first lady's arrival, there was an extensive security check at the show's Queens, N.Y., studios.

"They turned it upside down," Bernstein says. "There was a helicopter following, and Secret Service cars front and back and security agents. There was a big contingent of security officers. When she left, the FBI agents wanted to have their picture taken with Big Bird and Elmo."

Those fuzzy Muppets have that effect on people. Mrs. Bush says Elmo is her favorite, and that her twin daughters, Jenna and Barbara, used to "pretend like they were the Cookie Monster when they were in the kitchen."

Like any mom who has cuddled up with her children to watch the antics of Bert and Ernie, Mrs. Bush says she has very fond memories of watching the show with her girls. "I was not aware of it myself until I watched it with my own children," she says. "I usually watched it with them. The television was in my bedroom, which is also where my desk was."

Those days provide sweet memories for Mrs. Bush. "Jenna was about 11 months old and sitting in front of 'Sesame Street,' and it was a very simple, little short feature," she recalls. "It was the numbers 1-2-3, with three balls jumping around, and when it was over, she turned around and smiled at me like, 'Wasn't that great?' It's a memory I will always have about my daughter."

"I really think it is much better if parents can share some of that time," Mrs. Bush says of watching educational television with children. "It gives you the opportunity to reinforce concepts on

'Sesame Street' - vocabulary or alphabet or numbers. If parents reinforce some of it, it makes for a better learning experience for the children."

She adds, "There are certain television shows (that) if parents saw what was on them, they would try to think of some other activity other than watching television."

As a former elementary school librarian, Mrs. Bush advises parents read to their children.

"I can't stress how important it is to read to your children every day, from 6-months-old," she says. "They start school with a larger vocabulary, and they are much more likely to be lifelong readers if their parents read to them. And if they see their parents reading themselves, it is very likely that books will be important to them."

'Amazing Race 4' likely to air this summer

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q: When will we see "Amazing Race 4"? -M.C.H., Chicago.

A: Probably this coming summer, says the CBS publicist for the show. "Race 4," which is in the can and originally was set to be on the air by now, was pushed back due to the success of another "reality" series, "Star Search."

Host Phil Keoghan returns to pace the competing teams around the world.

Q: I have become a big fan of Billy Boyd from the "Lord of the Rings" movies. What else is he currently working on? -Christina via e-mail.

A: In addition to J.R.R. Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King" next Christmas, the 34-year-old Scottish actor co-stars next with Russell Crowe and Paul Bettany in Peter Weir's "Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World."

By the way, asked recently whether he is really anything like his accident-

prone "LOTR" character, "Pippin" Took, Boyd told an interviewer that the first time he tried to read the Tolkien trilogy, he dropped the book in a hotel swimming pool. "If that's not a Pippin thing to do, I don't know what is," he laughed.

Q: What was the name of the Danny Kaye movie in which he played a murder victim who "incarnates" within his identical twin? Is it available on video? -Anne Schmalz, Montrose, Colo.

A: "Wonder Man" (1945) is extremely hard to find on VHS and DVD, although you might find used copies - or very expensive new ones - online at Amazon.com or eBay.

OOPS: Contrary to an answer in our column of March 9, while Catherine O'Hara played mom Kate McCallister in the hit movies "Home Alone" and "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York," neither O'Hara nor her character appeared in "Home Alone 3." Cher turns back time in NBC concert special

By Jacqueline Cutler

© Zap2it

Anyone can cop an attitude and presume to be a diva, but few have the talent to back it up. In an industry littered with teenage has-beens, Cher exemplifies staying power.

That talent is on display in NBC's "Cher: The Farewell Tour" Tuesday, April 8.

Cher is adamant this is the final tour. "Being on the road is tiring," she says by phone from New Orleans, where she is doing the 111th show on a tour that began last June and shows no sign of ending.

"It doesn't seem to want to end," she says wearily. "It was supposed to end in June. We just got offered 50 more dates. I don't even know that there are any more places to play. I feel like I've been everywhere three times."

The show, taped last November in Miami, is vintage Cher, which means campy fun. This is a woman who understands too much is not enough, and has never met a sequin she didn't adorn herself with. After making a grand entrance, she jokes with the audience, tosses barbs at J. Lo and Britney, and sings her hits while acrobats, dancers, a band and backup singers perform.

She also, by her own calculations, goes through 11 costume changes during the course of the show, and all but one of those flamboyant outfits is by Bob Mackie.

"It's a very nostalgic tour," Mackie says. "It harked back to the '60s, before I worked with her." Mackie has been designing her outfits since her days on "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour." "No matter what I put on her, she just looked terrific. She could be anybody. She would be Catherine the Great one moment and Salome the next. The audience had a good time watching what she would wear. She always wore it as: 'This is what I have on.' It was always the attitude of, 'You want to look at me? Fine.'"

Just as she did 30 years ago, Cher still wears minimal outfits. No matter what Cher has done to herself, she looks terrific, especially considering that she turns 57 next month.

"On the road, I don't (exercise) because I'm working out two hours a night," she says. "I cover the stage every night 50 to 100 times. At home, I do yoga and weight training."

During the tour, Cher also has been shooting "Stuck on You," a Farrelly brothers comedy with Matt Damon. She says doing both simultaneously is insane. When the tour finally ends, Cher does not know what will come next.

"I don't have a clue," she says. "I never have a clue what I am going to do. My entire life has been clueless. Whatever comes up next is what I am going to do."

As she documents in her autobiography, "The First Time," Cher never did what others thought she should. By the time she was 16, she'd had a relationship with Warren Beatty and was living with Sonny Bono. Soon, she was hanging around Phil Spector's studio singing backup; the last record she worked on for Spector was 1964's "You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin'." Cher made her first solo recording, "Ringo, I Love You," in 1963 under the name Bonnie Jo Mason. It tanked.

Along the way, there have been tremendous riches and fabulous houses and huge crashes and tiny houses. She has been accepted in Hollywood, in whose shadows she grew up, wanting to be famous but unsure if someone with her sultry looks could make it.

Her mother, Georgia Holt, was an actress whose bit parts include playing the model with a trash can on her head in the Paris fashion episode of "I Love Lucy."

Though Cher knew the famous red-head since she was a child, memories of election night in 1968 continue to make her laugh. She and several other stars gathered at Jack Benny's house to watch Richard M. Nixon win. Lucy, Rosalind Russell and Cher were less than respectful, and Cher says Johnny Carson wanted them tossed from the premises. No one would mess with Lucy, Cher says in much saltier language, so they were relegated to a den, where Russell told her that "I would be a great actress," Cher recalls, still shocked. "It was so unbelievable to be around people who were your mother's favorite people."

Though she hobnobs with major stars, Cher remains true to lesser-known people, and her loyalty to one hurt her career. She was a longtime user of Lori Davis hair products and did an infomercial for Davis over her agent's objections. She also lost about $7 million selling Victorian furniture.

"Failure is highly underrated," Cher says. "If you don't have failure, you start to lose touch with reality, not that I have a very firm grasp on it."

Cher does, though, have an iron-clad grip on frankness, apparently lacking the internal censor between brain and mouth. She once called David Letterman an unflattering name on his former NBC talk show. How does such unbridled candor go over in Hollywood? "I don't know, and I don't care," she says.

She continues to have her own style. Could anyone forget Cher's black sequined get-up with the feather headdress she wore while presenting Don Ameche's Oscar in 1986?

Cher, who performs in concert in NBC's "Cher: The Farewell Tour" on Tuesday, jokes that she has been "an evil diva" for 40 years and needs to get off the road.

Given her decades in the spotlight, Cher has not been linked to many men. There was the 12-year marriage and lifelong friendship to Sonny, which produced their daughter, Chastity, and the three-year marriage to Gregg Allman, with whom she has son Elijah Blue. Her relationship with Robert Camilletti, dubbed "bagel boy" by the tabloids, was a May-December relationship, and paparazzi hounded him away.

Through it all, Cher managed to thrive in dual careers. She won the 1988 best actress Oscar for "Moonstruck." She was on Broadway in "Come Back to the 5 & Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean." And in the early- and mid-1970s, she starred in "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour." Cher is also the female artist with the longest span in the top 100: "I Got You Babe" was No. 1 in 1965; "Song for the Lonely" was No. 85 in 2002.

Cher has no idea why she endures. "Luck," she says, then realizes that sounds more flippant than she intends. "There are a lot of people as talented, if not more so. It's not just luck. I don't know what it is."

In the Spotlight

PBS' 'Jury' guilty of being criminally entertaining

By John Crook

© Zap2it

"The Jury," a four-part "Masterpiece Theatre" miniseries premiering Sunday, April 6, on PBS, unfolds like the greatest episode of "Law & Order" that NBC never produced, with one striking difference. The case is viewed from the perspective of the 12 individuals sitting in judgment.

The 12 have assembled in the Old Bailey to hear the racially explosive case of a Sikh teenager accused of brutally murdering a white classmate who had been bullying him. Outside the courtroom, tempers are running high among demonstrators from both sides of the racial barrier.

Inside, however, avuncular defense counsel George Cording (Derek Jacobi) quietly lays out his two key arguments: No one witnessed the murder, and the doelike defendant (Sonnell Dadral) clearly looks incapable of attacking - with a ritual sword - another youth, as he is accused of doing.

Prosecutor Gerald Lewis (Antony Sher) relentlessly counters with his own argument: Among other compelling circumstantial evidence, the defendant was seen fleeing from the public park where the victim's corpse was found.

Gradually, the focus shifts from the key courtroom players to the members of the jury entrusted with hearing this highly controversial case. The sessions begin to take a heavy toll on most of them - especially since they are sent home to their own lives each night, not impaneled in some secure hotel.

The jurors include single mother Marcia Thomas (Nina Sosanya), whose young child makes her easy prey for intimidation by racist spectators; Peter Segal (Michael Maloney), a Jewish businessman badgered by his anti-Semitic father-in-law into revealing confidential aspects of the case over dinner each night; Rose Davies (Helen McCrory), a beautician who sees her jury duty as a welcome escape from the drudgery of caring for her disabled husband; and Johnnie Donne (Gerard Butler), a recovering alcoholic just released from a halfway house.

Sher, who gleefully calls his ferret-like character "a defendant's worst nightmare," prepared for his role by sitting in on a real front-burner murder case.

"I can honestly say they were three of the most dramatic hours I've ever spent," he says. "It was absolutely spellbinding. I felt like I was sitting at the Roman games, alongside a group of strangers, watching this woman fall apart as every detail of her sex life was discussed."

Jacobi's commitment to a theater role kept him from sitting in on a case, but he says barrister Colin Aylott, a consultant on the production, showed him the "dos" and "don'ts" of courtroom conduct.

"I couldn't quite believe how disciplined and restrictive it is," Jacobi says. "There is very little opportunity to voice your own opinions and phrase questions in your own way."

The Emmy-winning actor relished working on location in such a landmark of British law. "The first thing I noticed when I walked into the Old Bailey was the atmosphere," he says. "It is very oppressive and quite intimidating. You are fully aware that someone's life is on the line and, to an extent, in your hands."

"The Jury" beautifully captures that air of tension, thanks to a tight script and compelling performances. This crackling legal drama is first-degree entertainment with plenty of appeal.

Derek Jacobi (left) and Antony Sher star as courtroom adversaries squaring off in the case of a Sikh teenager accused of brutally murdering a white classmate in "The Jury," a four-part "Masterpiece Theatre" production, premiering Sunday on PBS.

A Tiger in green: Woods goes for fourth Masters title

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Say the words "The Masters," and many people think of Tiger Woods.

They might think of him because of his dominating performance in 1997 when he won the tournament by a record 12 strokes. They might think of him because he is the two-time defending champion and winner of three green jackets overall. Or they might think of him because he is the best golfer in the world.

"Everywhere he goes, most of the attention is drawn to him," says Bobby Clampett, a tower reporter who is covering the 11th and 12th holes at Augusta National Golf Club for CBS this week. "He's used to that. And any major championship, with his record of already having won eight, the figuring is that he's always the man to beat. Especially when you talk about Augusta National; that's a golf course that even when Tiger was playing in practice rounds as an amateur, he played a practice round once with Arnold (Palmer) and Jack (Nicklaus), and they said that after playing with him that they would be surprised if he didn't win as many Masters as Jack and Arnold combined, which is 10. So he's well on his way."

This year, Woods goes for his fourth title at Augusta National and his ninth victory in a major tournament when the Masters gets under way Thursday, April 10. USA Network covers the first two rounds Thursday and Friday, with CBS broadcasting the final pair over the weekend.

Last year's three-stroke victory over Retief Goosen added several more records to Woods' many milestones. He became only the third player, along with Nicklaus and Nick Faldo, to win back-to-back Masters. He joined Faldo, Jimmy Demaret, Sam Snead and Gary Player as three-time Masters champs. And he became the youngest player in history to win seven major titles, passing Nicklaus.

He did it on an already difficult Augusta National course that had been lengthened for the 2002 tournament and was waterlogged by several days of rain prior to tee-off.

Both those factors, Clampett says, played into the heavy-hitting Woods' hands. "It's not just a bomber's course," Clampett cautions. "You've got to drive it straight, but you've got to have length, and it's more length-oriented now than it used to be."

The wet is another matter. Rain combined with cooler spring temperatures often means little evaporation and excess water. Pumps below ground can keep the greens in top-notch condition, but the fairways, without such a facility, are often left soggy. "Obviously, that's one of the things that they can't control as much in the fairways," Clampett says, "and if the ball is sticking in the fairways but the greens are firm, then again, it plays into the longer hitter even more so. So Tiger, again, was at an advantage last year with wet conditions.

"What the players will hope for, and really what the Masters is hoping for, is dry weather, because they can control so much more of the way the golf course is meant to be played. And they don't want a bomber's course, solely."

Clampett looks for Woods to be challenged this year by among others, Ernie Els, winner of two U.S. Opens and one British Open. "Ernie's just had a phenomenal year," Clampett says, "and I have just sensed for a while that he is due for a good Masters. I just have a suspicion this year's going to be it for him."

Phil Mickelson also could be in the mix, but Clampett cautions that "Mickelson's at a point where he's getting very frustrated with himself, and I don't know if he's going to be able to pick himself up by the bootstraps or not. He's had so many blows that how many times can you get shot down and stand back up? He's a great talent, a wonderful player, and I think that's his best chance to win a major there at Augusta, but we'll have to see. He'll be primed."

"I think Vijay (Singh) is going to have a great tournament. His game impressed me so much at Phoenix this year. What he's been doing with his golf swing and golf game, I think he's going to be great."

"NASCAR Winston Cup Aaron's 499" Sunday, April 6 (Fox, 12 p.m. ET): Teamwork might not be the foremost thought in a driver's mind while jostling for position in Talladega Superspeedway's often crowded lead pack. But with the help of teammate Michael Waltrip riding shotgun, teamwork is exactly what keyed Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s win last year in the Aaron's 499. The dynamic duo returns to defend its team's title, with Earnhardt aiming for a record fourth straight win on Talladega's 2.66-mile track.

"Anaheim Angels at Oakland A's" Sunday, April 6 (ESPN2, 8 p.m. ET): Twenty straight AL West games to open this season present a chance for the Athletics, who meet the Angels tonight in Oakland, to get a jump in baseball's toughest division. Miguel Tejada and the A's got off to a slow start last year, but came on to win the division by four games over the Angels. Tejada went on to win the MVP (.308, 34, 131), but his seventh season in the Bay Area is likely his last there due to his impending free-agent status.

"College Basketball" Monday, April 7 (CBS, 9 p.m. ET): The only thing easy about this year's NCAA tournament is the city tonight's championship game is played in. Otherwise, winning four pressure-packed games in the frenzy of March Madness to get to the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans is no walk down Bourbon Street. Jim Nantz and Billy Packer know how tough it is. They've seen plenty in their time behind the mike; this is the 13th consecutive season the duo has called college hoops's premier event.

Alias

Ethan Hawke ("Training Day") makes a rare TV appearance in the repeat episode "Double Agent." He plays a supposed CIA operative whose identity is questioned by Sydney, Vaughn and Jack (Jennifer Garner, Michael Vartan, Victor Garber). Longtime friends Francie and Will (Merrin Dungey, Bradley Cooper) mull whether to progress with their new romantic relationship.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: The Whole Nine Yards

A dentist (Matthew Perry) with an unhappy marriage and a lot of debt discovers his new neighbor (Bruce Willis) is a former mob hit man from Chicago trying to start over. The dentist's wife (Rosanna Arquette) learns the man has a price on his head and persuades her husband to go to Chicago, rat him out and collect the bounty. The men's unexpected friendship gets in the way. Michael Clarke Duncan and Amanda Peet co-star in this 2000 comedy.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Criminal Intent

The brutal murders of a father and son clue Goren and Eames (Vincent D'Onofrio, Kathryn Erbe) into several disappearances from the same inner city neighborhood in the new episode "Legion." The missing people are youngsters possibly linked to a bike-theft ring and a recording-studio operator (guest star Paul Calderon) who has major influence over his youthful admirers.

Masterpiece Theatre

The focus is on the 12 jurors as much as, if not more than, on the case they must deliberate in the new four-part drama "The Jury." They're charged with determining the fate of a Sikh teen (Sonnell Dadral) allegedly responsible for the murder — by sword — of a classmate. Derek Jacobi ("I, Claudius") and Antony Sher ("Mrs. Brown") play the attorneys on opposing sides of the trial. Helen McCrory and Gerard Butler co-star.

8 p.m. on HBO

Six Feet Under

Directed by Oscar-winning actress Kathy Bates ("Misery"), recently nominated again for "About Schmidt," the new episode "Making Love Work" sends Nate and Lisa (Peter Krause, Lili Taylor) on a camping trip with their baby daughter. Rico (Freddy Rodriguez) has problems with an oversized corpse and its appropriately proportioned casket. Claire and Russell (Lauren Ambrose, Ben Foster) engage in unusual art creation.

All My Children

Michael began manipulating Kendall into stealing Boyd's secret formula. Erica told Jack she needs more time before making a decision about their future, while Jack feared that Chris might become violent. When Reggie stopped Luis from mugging Joni, Luis beat him up. Henry felt guilty for cheating on the chemistry exam but Maggie talked him out of confessing to their professor. Holly, a young prostitute, played on Jamie's vulnerability as she consoled him about Laurie. Greenlee and Carlos grew closer following her heartfelt apology. Coming: Erica is offered a lavish gift.

As the World Turns

Craig took note when Carly, suffering from a creative block, told him that all would be well if Barbara would vanish. Jessica reacted badly to Ben's suggestion that she drop the rape charges, prompting Marshall to decide to release the photo of their lovemaking. Alison sought a way out after dealing with her mean roommates in the detention center. Unaware that Mike confessed his love to her as she slept, Molly told Dusty that she's broken up with Mike, and she and Dusty made love. Coming: The rape trial gets down and dirty.

Bold and Beautiful

Dominick's mother, Jackie, slipped the Marone ring off his finger, as if hiding something. Jackie was crushed when Massimo didn't recognize her. As Dominick feared being framed by Massimo, evidence proved him innocent of causing the tanker accident. Darla kept quiet in front of Macy about her tryst with Thorne, but her tearful behavior puzzled Macy. April was impressed with Deacon's business sense and asked him to become her agent, trying to seal the deal with a kiss. Bridget covered her pain about Ridge and Brooke's romantic progress. Coming: Dominick wonders about Massimo's ring.

Days of Our Lives

Cassie was arrested for being drunk in public. When John and Tony were at odds over how to deal with Cassie, she realized she could manipulate them to get what she wants. Instead of making love with Shawn, Belle threw him out of her room after his teasing got her angry and upset. Bo and Jack went to Echelon, a men's club, on the trail of Palmer, as Jack wound up being knocked out by the bouncer and Bo got a lead in his quest for the drug connection. Victor offered Brady a job at Titan. Coming: Jennifer puts herself in harm's way.

General Hospital

After Carly fell through the ice while saving Michael, Sonny was forced to choose between her life and that of their unborn child, and picked Carly. Fortunately, Carly awoke and learned that her baby survived. As accusations were hurled when Kristina disappeared, she was shown to be safe and sound at Brenda's cottage, where Skye and A.J. had taken her. Alexis found Kristina at the cottage, and Cameron helped her spend time with the baby. Emily returned home and revealed that she dropped out of college. Alone, Emily prepared to inject herself with drugs. Coming: Sonny orders Jason to kill Jack.

Guiding Light

When a hostage-holding gunman menaced Harley, Gus rushed in to help, but Harley was gravely injured in the process. Alexandra offered to help Olivia clear her name in return for Olivia encouraging Phillip to return to his family and the family business. Ben went on another "date" with Mrs. Hendon but accidentally left something behind in the hotel room. Bill had to adjust to Danny and Michelle's announcement that they've agreed to remarry. Coming: Harley's life hangs in the balance.

One Life to Live

Lindsay confessed to Jen that she accidentally killed Sam, which Jen relayed to Troy. Blair abducted Mitch - preventing him from killing Lindsay - and threatened to do away with Mitch unless he reveals what he did with Todd. However, Dorian enabled Mitch to escape. When Antonio's questioning of Troy got out of hand, Bo took his badge, but returned it after Antonio promised to keep his temper in check. Joey convinced Flash to audition for R.J. again. Marcie became suspicious when she saw Al with Brad, as Al was buying drugs. Coming: Natalie replies to Cristian's proposal.

Passions

Ethan turned the tables on Julian when he realized that Theresa could keep the baby if she remains on the estate at Sheridan's cottage. Gwen was not happy with Ethan's efforts on Theresa's behalf. T.C. exploded at finding Whitney being intimate with Chad. Whitney, on the outs with her family, agonized over whether she should go to L.A. with Chad, who was offered a dream job. Sam was ready to walk out on Grace until she agreed to remove all outside threats to their marriage. Ivy urged David not to leave town since they are so close to getting what they want. Coming: Beth finds an unlikely collaborator.

Port Charles

Kevin intended to do away with Ian by sealing him behind a brick wall, but Ian escaped. Caleb ended up in the spring after attacking Lucy and emerged no longer a vampire, as Livvie sensed that something was wrong. After an explosion in the hot spring injured Lucy, Ian told her that Joshua caused the blast, intending to kill all of them. Rafe told Ian and Lucy that he won't allow Livvie to turn Caleb into a vampire. Coming: Frank is chosen for a mission.

Young and Restless

Mac was stunned when Billy asked her to marry him. When Nick blasted Victor for kissing Sharon, Victor retorted that Nick should blame himself for his problems. Later, Victor and Nick were shocked when they heard Cassie scream. Andy and Diane shared a kiss. Ashley informed Dru that Victor doesn't know about Abby's paternity and warned Dru to stay out of her personal business. When Brad wanted to drop Dru as Jabot's spokeswoman for the new cosmetics line, Dru defended herself by bringing up Ashley's relationship with Victor. Isabella feared that Paul is trying to uncover her past. Coming: Jack and Phyllis are at odds about her job.

'Days' actor joins the ranks of the USO

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

"Days of Our Lives" star James Reynolds (Abe Carver) has joined with the USO to create a new program.

Reynolds is the first actor to participate in the USO Celebrity Education Program, which is a tour designed for celebrities to showcase their talents and offer their appreciation for service members and their families.

In March, the Vietnam veteran visited several schools in Kaiserslautern, Germany, where he held question-and-answer sessions, signed autographs, and talked with children about the importance of staying in school.

In other news: Fans are outraged by the way Kristina Wagner (Felicia Jones) left "General Hospital." She was there one day and gone the next. After almost 20 years, the actress decided to leave the show because she didn't have a good story line. The official statement from "GH" is that she left to pursue other projects.

While Wagner is history, another fan favorite has been put back on contract. John J. York (Mac Scorpio) is returning to the show. York says it was the dedication of his fans that helped him return.

Also leaving is Jack Scalia, who plays Chris Stamp on "All My Children." The actor says it's time to move on from Pine Valley and the world of daytime to some new projects. The actor recently began a ministry with the Chrisagis Brothers. Additional information is available at www.jackscalia.com. He also has a new cookbook on the way, which is titled "Scalia's Secret Recipes."

Scalia first joined "AMC" in June 2001 in the role of a janitor who later turned out to be an undercover federal agent.

Dear Candace: I would like to know about Lauralee Bell, who plays Chris on "The Young and the Restless." Did she have some kind of plastic surgery? She looks like she did years ago. -Dorothy Scully, DeLancey, New York.

Dear Reader: That is sheer happiness radiating from Bell. She has a job she loves, a great husband and two wonderful children at home.

The Practice

CBS programming chief (and former actor) Leslie Moonves has some fun with the medium he serves by crossing networks to play himself in the new episode "Les Is More," written by series creator David E. Kelley. Moonves is key to the case Jimmy (Michael Badalucco) handles for a troubled client (guest star Andie MacDowell, "Four Weddings and a Funeral"). Lindsay and Bobby's (Kelli Williams, Dylan McDermott) marital woes worsen.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS
College Basketball

The only thing easy about this year's NCAA tournament is the city in which tonight's championship game is played. Otherwise, winning four pressure-packed games in the frenzy of March Madness to get to the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans is no walk down Bourbon Street. Jim Nantz and Billy Packer know how tough it is. They've seen plenty in their time behind the mike; this is the 13th consecutive season the duo has called college hoops' premier event.

8 p.m. on 38-WB
Everwood

Theater-loving Dr. Abbott (Tom Amandes) gets another reason to resent Andy (Treat Williams) in the repeat episode "The Price of Fame." The Everwood newcomer lands a starring role in a local staging of "The King and I" and discovers acting doesn't come as naturally to him as practicing medicine. Given his feelings for Amy, Ephram (Gregory Smith) is wary of Colin's (Mike Erwin) friendly overtures.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC
Third Watch

The drama series lands rare TV guest star Tom Berenger for a four-episode story arc, which will close its fourth season. In "Everybody Lies," Berenger plays a reporter who lives hard and keeps secrets. He begins a romance with Kim (Kim Raver) after he is injured in the wake of an accident involving an armored car. Yokas and Bosco (Molly Price, James O'Neil, Wiles) try to prevent thefts at the site.

Movie: American Experience

The Oscar-nominated documentary "Daughter From Danang" focuses on the reunion of a Vietnamese woman and her Amerasian daughter, who were separated in 1975 when the mother sent her child to America in what was known as Operation Babylift. The girl was adopted and raised in Tennessee, where she kept her roots secret. Many years later, she sought her birth mother and went back to Vietnam — and into a culture clash.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC
Crossing Jordan

The mother (Julia Campbell) of a teenager who died in a meth lab explosion complicates Jordan's (Jill Hennessy) investigation in the new episode "Fire and Ice." The district attorney intends to prosecute a drug dealer in connection with the tragedy, but the grieving, vengeful mother kidnaps the chief witness.

Tuesday Best Bets

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

24

Wallace (guest star Gregg Henry) is ready to present evidence that will stave off a war in the new episode "Day 2: 1:00 — 2:00 AM." Before he can do that, Jack (Kiefer Sutherland) must protect him from a military attack. President Palmer (Dennis Haysbert) prepares to deploy National Guardsmen to help quell the unrest that has followed the nuclear explosion in California.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Guardian

A youngster (Will Rothhaar) desperate for a bone-marrow transplant from his sister (Holly Shear) is trapped in a trade-off in the repeat episode "The Living." The sister — also a minor — will agree to the operation only if Nick and Laurie (Simon Baker, Kathleen Chalfant) help her retrieve her baby, taken from her by social services representatives because of her living situation.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Cher: The Farewell Tour

An enduring pop-music star performs a show that's part of a concert tour she maintains is her last. Cher spans virtually her entire career — from the early tunes she recorded with ex-husband Sonny Bono to more recent hits such as "Believe" — in a performance taped last fall at the American Airlines Arena in Miami. As usual, she dons an array of wigs and costumes selected to match the mood of each song she renders.

8:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Lost at Home

Though he has the best intentions in trying to help Rachel (Connie Britton) with parenting tasks, Michael (Mitch Rouse) only makes matters worse in the new episode "One Bracelet Don't Feed the Beast." He causes Josh (Gavin Fink) to miss a doctor's appointment and Sara (Leah Pipes) to have trouble at school. Jordan (Gregory Hines) recommends that Michael take himself out of his enhanced paternal role as soon as possible.

9 p.m. on HBO

Crank: Made in America

The epidemic proportions of addiction to methamphetamines, or "crank," in the United States are examined in this new "America Undercover" documentary. The drug is widely available because of the relative ease with which it can be manufactured, since the ingredients are chemicals in everyday use. Rural areas of the U.S. have been affected in particular by crank, with the number of addicts steadily rising.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

Jim (Jim Belushi) gets into a bidding war on an Internet auction site when he goes after a piece of Chicago Bears memorabilia in the new episode "The Helmet." He doesn't know his chief rival is Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith), who isn't happy when she realizes he's bidding with the funds he refused to spend on the new dryer she wanted.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

The mission is personal for Clark (Tom Welling) when Martha (Annette O'Toole) is taken hostage by criminals — along with Lionel (John Glover), who gets a big test of his mansion's new surveillance system — in the repeat episode "Insurgence." Naturally, Clark wants to rescue his Earth mother, but he must do it in a way that doesn't reveal his otherworldly powers.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS
Alan Alda in Scientific American Frontiers

Digital technology clearly has helped many people do things that were deemed virtually impossible before, and in remote areas, the progress is particularly significant. The new episode "You Can Make It on Your Own" considers the impact as host Alda travels to rural India, where the food supply is monitored by computer for amount and quality. Also, musician Joshua Bell performs on a computerized "hyperviolin."

9 p.m. on 26-ABC

NYPD Blue

As the series returns with the new episode "Off the Wall," controversy swirls around the New York City Police Department — and Jones (Henry Simmons) in particular — after he accidentally shoots a youngster while pursuing a murder suspect. The death of a man known for repeated abuse of his girlfriend focuses initial suspicions on her.

9:40 p.m. on AMC

Movie: French Kiss

Meg Ryan stars in this 1995 comedy as a desperate young woman who overcomes her fear of flying to search for her fiancé (Timothy Hutton) after he calls her from Paris to break their engagement. On the plane, she meets a French jewel thief (Kevin Kline) who uses her luggage to smuggle a diamond bracelet. Jean Reno ("The Professional") co-stars.

Wednesday Best Bets

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Bernie Mac Show

Bernie (Bernie Mac) tries to out-smart the kids when he realizes that each of them wants something from him in the new episode "Chess Wars." He believes that thinking in terms of playing a game of chess will help him stay ahead of them. But he doesn't know that Jordan (Jeremy Suarez) is using exactly the same principle to wheedle a paintball gun out of him.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

President Bartlet (Martin Sheen) continues his Midwest campaign swing, though he's missing a few key staff members, in Part 2 of the repeat story "20 Hours in America." The stranded Toby, Josh and Donna (Richard Schiff, Bradley Whitford, Janel Moloney) use every means to reunite with the rest of the caravan — and in doing so, they get to hear Middle America's take on the Bartlet administration.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Peter and Paul and the Christian Revolution

The roots of Christianity are explored in a new special merging dramatic re-enactments with writings of the time and the modern perspectives of scholars. Peter led those who previously followed Jesus by fostering their shared vision, with Paul joining the movement after having an astonishing revelation. Other forces threatened the believers, and Paul ultimately turned against them. So did the Roman Empire, via war and enslavement.

8 p.m. on 54-UPN

The Twilight Zone

A hip-hop star (Wood Harris) envisions himself being subjected to an interrogation by police detectives who believe he killed another cop in the repeat episode "Another Life." The hallucination is so realistic, the musician wonders if he actually committed the murder. Then in "Rewind," a gambler (Eddie Kaye Thomas,

"American Pie") uses a time-altering device to try to win a game that has major stakes.

8 p.m. on HALL

Movie: Promise

James Garner and Emmy winner James Woods do superb, affecting work in this 1986 "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama about the strained relationship between a schizophrenic man (Woods) and his brother. They become housemates upon the death of their mother, who had been the troubled sibling's caretaker. Piper Laurie also earned an Emmy as a longtime family friend.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home

The Enterprise crew journeys back to the 1980s to save a pair of humpback whales, preventing the extinction of the species and saving the Earth. Leonard Nimoy directed this 1986 outing filled with priceless comic moments. Among them: Scotty's (James Doohan) bout with a 20th-century computer and Kirk's (William Shatner) attempt to explain Spock (Nimoy) as a burned-out druggie from the '60s. Catherine Hicks ("7th Heaven") co-stars.

8 p.m. on TMC

Movie: Deep Cover

An undercover police officer (Laurence Fishburne) immerses himself in his assignment to break up a drug-smuggling operation in this intense 1992 drama directed by actor-filmmaker Bill Duke. The cop targets an attorney and sometime drug dealer (Jeff Goldblum) as his ticket into the underworld. The mission takes a drastic turn when the policeman must kill a pusher. Clarence Williams III ("The Mod Squad") co-stars.

8:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Wanda at Large

Eager to get added exposure for "The Beltway Gang," Roger (Jason Kravits) gets Wanda and Bradley (Wanda Sykes, Phil Morris) to go to a basketball game — without letting them know they'll have adjacent seats — in the new episode "Wanda and Bradley." There's palpable tension as soon as they get to the game, but the occasion takes on a surprisingly different tone for them as it proceeds.

11:45 p.m. on AMC

Movie: French Connection II

After winning an Oscar for his first portrayal of New York police detective Popeye Doyle, Gene Hackman reprises the role in this fast-paced 1975 sequel directed by John Frankenheimer. Doyle goes to Marseille to continue chasing the drug kingpin known as "The Frog" (Fernando Rey). The tables turn when Doyle is captured by the villain and forcibly addicted to heroin. Bernard Fresson co-stars as a helpful French cop.

Extreme Makeover

A successful special from earlier this season is converted into a weekly series, and the premiere episode reveals that the concept remains largely the same. People are subjected to — well, extreme makeovers, with consultants on health, nutrition and appearance all weighing in with views on how to make the subjects look better. Sissy Biggers ("Ready ... Set ... Cook!") is the show's host.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

A dentist is stabbed to death while watching a film in an "art house" theater in the new episode "A Night at the Movies." Grissom and Catherine (William Petersen, Marg Helgenberger) seek an attractive blonde who may be able to provide clues. The fatal shooting of a teenager puts Warrick, Nick and Sara (Gary Dourdan, George Eads, Jorja Fox) at odds over the evidence.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Minnie Driver ("Good Will Hunting") makes a rare TV appearance as the love interest of Karen's (Megan Mullally) ex-husband in the repeat episode "Homojo." Jack (Sean Hayes) becomes friendly with the woman, which doesn't please Karen. Will and Grace (Eric McCormack, Debra Messing) hope an evening of playing a board game will energize their friendship.

8:30 p.m. on 6-NBC

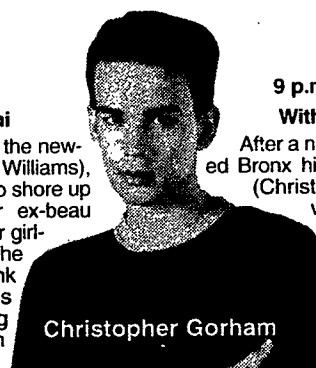

Good Morning, Miami

Eager to make his move on the newly unattached Dylan (Ashley Williams), Jake (Mark Feuerstein) tries to shore up his chances by finding her ex-beau Gavin (Matt Letscher) another girlfriend in the new episode "The Slow and the Furious." Frank (Jere Burns) encourages Claire to end a long-lasting feud by making amends with an ill friend.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Without a Trace

After a night class, a devoted Bronx high-school teacher (Christopher Gorham) vanishes. His image seems tarnished when Malone and the other investigators find heroin in his apartment.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC 8 Simple Rules for Dating My Teen-age Daughter

A family contest determines where Paul and Cate (John Ritter, Katey Sagal) will take the children on vacation in the repeat episode "Give It Up." Everyone has an idea of where they all should spend their break, so Paul proposes that everyone give up his or her worst habits for a week. The person who lasts the longest will get to determine the vacation spot. "Survivor"-like alliances soon start to emerge.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS Hack

A Justice Department worker (guest star Meghan Wolf) doesn't know where to turn after her sister (guest star Rebecca Lisak) is kidnapped by a hit man (guest star Titus Welliver, "Falcone") who wants to know the secret location of a federal witness (guest star James Eckhouse, "Beverly Hills, 90210") in the repeat episode "A Dangerous Game." Olshansky (David Morse) tries to help the siblings by abducting the witness.

8 p.m. on 38-WB Reba

Heard more often than seen, Dan Castellane — the voice of Homer on "The Simpsons" — guest stars in the repeat episode "Mommies Nearest." He plays Brock's (Christopher Rich) chief rival in dentistry, who makes Reba (Reba McEntire) his newest hire.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC Ed

The comedy-drama series wraps up its third season as Frankie (Sabrina Lloyd) presses Ed (Tom Cavanagh) to decide between her and Carol (Julie Bowen), or she'll make it easy for him by leaving town. Ed gets unexpected input by observing Mike (Josh Randall), who is propositioned by a college student (guest star Sarah Jane Morris). Phil (Michael Ian Black) gives Eli some love-life advice.

8 p.m. on TMC Movie: Enemy at the Gates

Director Jean-Jacques Annaud's fact-based 2001 drama stars Jude Law as an ace Russian sniper whose skills give his comrades hope for a World War II victory at Stalingrad. However, the Germans have their own expert shooter (Ed Harris) assigned to take out his Soviet counterpart.

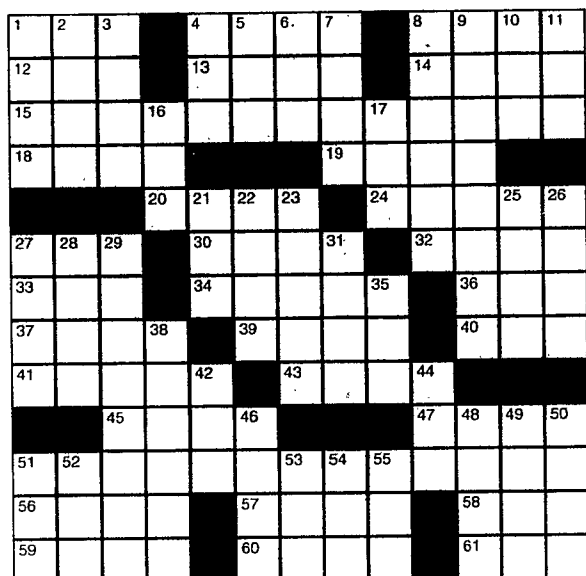

David Morse, Andre Braugher

Saturday Best Bets

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: My Best Friend's Wedding

The pretty woman gets pretty devilish in this 1997 hit romantic comedy. Julia Roberts plays food critic Julianne Potter, who decides her best buddy (Dermot Mulroney) should be more than that and pulls out all the stops to keep him from marrying someone else (Cameron Diaz). Rupert Everett drew raves from critics and female fans for his portrayal of George, Julianne's gay friend and co-conspirator.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

All of the victims in a serial murder spree have a common link in the new episode "Bloodlines": They were all African-Americans who were in interracial relationships. Evidence at the scene of one of the crimes indicates the killer has sickle cell anemia. Ella (Lynne Thigpen, the series co-star who died after this episode was filmed) may provide the key to determining the felon's identity.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: Hunter: Back in Force

Sometimes, all it takes is a high-rated reunion movie to put an old show back on the weekly schedule, and this two-hour story — which launches a series revival of the 1984-91 series "Hunter" — is a case in point.

point. Fred Dryer returns to duty as Rick

Hunter, the police detective who deals with suspects in a less-than-genteel manner. Stephanie Kramer also is back as Dee Dee McCall, Hunter's longtime partner against crime.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Agency

Underworld figures don't realize they're dealing with al-Qaeda terrorists in buying heroin in the new episode "Spy Finance." Gage and Quinn (Beau Bridges, Daniel Benzali) want to know what the profits are being used for, so Stiles (Jason O'Mara) is assigned to infiltrate the operation. Once he's on the inside, his true identity is exposed, forcing his bosses to initiate delicate negotiations to save his life.

9 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Stepmom

Susan Sarandon and Julia Roberts, who co-produced the film, do fine work as rivals in director Chris Columbus' 1998 drama. Roberts plays Isabel, the girlfriend of Jacques

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"HARRY POTTER AND THE CHAMBER OF SECRETS": A mysterious force threatens Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry in the totally captivating second movie adapted from J.K. Rowling's novels. To keep the school from closing, Harry, Weasley and Hermione (Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint, Emma Watson) must find out what is causing people known as Mudbloods from becoming petrified; literally, Robbie Coltrane, Kenneth Branagh and Richard Harris co-star.  (PG: V)

"THINGS BEHIND THE SUN": Inspired by the life experiences of director and co-writer Allison Anders ("Grace of My Heart"), this intense drama, a Sundance Film Festival attraction, was televised by Showtime. Kim Dickens ("Hollow Man") stars as the singer-songwriter at the heart of a reporter's (Gabriel Mann) magazine article. He claims to know who sexually assaulted her years earlier. Don Cheadle ("Traffic") also stars.  (R: AS, P, V)

"WAKING UP IN RENO": The road to a monster-truck show leads two couples (Patrick Swayze and Charlize Theron, Billy Bob Thornton and Natasha Richardson) into various misadventures in this offbeat comedy. One husband (Swayze) feels compelled to service his baby-minded wife whenever the urge for intimacy strikes her; however, he doesn't realize that the other husband already has helped her out on that count. Penelope Cruz ("Vanilla Sky") co-stars.  (R: AS, P)

Video Vantage

"PAID IN FULL": A frustrated Harlem teenager (Wood Harris) succumbs to vice - and the allure of what its profits can provide him - in this urban melodrama. Getting the chance to make his mark, he uses his street smarts and what he learns to rise quickly in the underworld. However, he doesn't expect to become a target of rivals as soon as he does. Co-stars include Mekhi Phifer ("ER"), Esai Morales ("NYPD Blue") and Regina Hall ("Love & Basketball"). (R: AS, P, V)

"FIRST SHOT": She passed on the first sequel, but Mariel Hemingway is back in the role of Secret Service agent Alex McGregor, which she originated in the TV movie "First Daughter." In this serviceable thriller, Alex - now in charge of the Secret Service - must stop rebels intent on assassinating the president (Gregory Harrison) to avenge the deaths of their brothers in an earlier confrontation. They want Alex, too, and use her husband (Doug Savant) as bait.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"WHAT GIRLS LEARN": Directed by Lee Rose ("A Girl Thing"), this fine made-for-Showtime version of the book by Karin Cook centers on young sisters (Alison Pill, Tamara Hope) deeply affected by their mother's decisions. The girls aren't happy about the new man ("Enterprise" star Scott Bakula, also an executive producer here) in their mom's (Elizabeth Perkins) life, and moving into his home strains relationships even more.  (PG: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"DRUMLINE" (April 15): The members of a school drum team give everything they've got in pursuit of a championship title. Orlando Jones and Nick Cannon star. (PG-13: P)

"EVELYN" (April 15): Pierce Brosnan stars in the fact-inspired story of an Irishman determined to regain custody of his daughter and two sons after his wife leaves him. (PG: AS, P)

"SPIRITED AWAY" (April 15): The acclaimed, animated Japanese film follows a youngster's adventures when she encounters spirits in an amusement park. (PG: AS, V)

"THE TRANSPORTER" (April 15): A former Special Forces operative-turned-courier (Jason Statham) puts his life on the line over his latest assignment. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"STANDING IN THE SHADOWS OF MOTOWN" (April 22): The history of the Detroit-based Motown Records label is traced in a documentary with a Grammy-winning soundtrack. (PG: P)

"TWO WEEKS NOTICE" (April 29): A womanizing real-estate tycoon (Hugh Grant) hires an attorney (Sandra Bullock) who is determined to resist his charms. (PG-13: AS, P)

OLDIES BUT GOODIES

If your local video store is fresh out of new releases, give these a look:

"HARRY POTTER AND THE SORCERER'S STONE" (2001): A young wizard-to-be (Daniel Radcliffe) sets out to fulfill his destiny by attending the magical Hogwarts School. ***

FX rolls the dice in new series starring John Corbett

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

It's the last day of shooting on FX's new series "Lucky," and 150 extras are on hand to stage the World Series of Poker, the event that signaled the beginning of the end for compulsive gambler Michael "Lucky" Linkletter a year before.

John Corbett, playing Lucky, comes in to pay his entrance fee. Already 6 feet 5 inches tall, Corbett sports a pompadour that adds a couple more inches. This, combined with sleek suits and cool shades, makes him look as little as possible like his last TV role, that of easygoing, country-cabin-owning furniture designer Aidan Shaw on HBO's "Sex and the City."

The gambling venue (the exact location of which Corbett would like to leave to the audience's imagination) is no Glitter Gulch fantasy palace. The leather (or is it vinyl?) on the bar stools is cracked in places, and the carpet has seen better days.

This may be a show set in Las Vegas, but, as Corbett says between takes, "We're not at the Bellagio."

It may not be a long way in distance from the strip to downtown, but Corbett says, "That's our experience, pawn shops and penny slots. Our experience of Vegas is pretty much the Fremont Experience, the Golden Nugget, the Golden Gate."

"This is a downtown show," says executive producer Mark Cullen, "and these are downtown people."

Rolling back 13 half-hour episodes in time, the series opens Tuesday, April 8 (occupying the former time slot of "The Shield"), with Lucky at his lowest ebb (to that point, anyway). After winning $1 million at the World Series of Poker, he's blown the cash, lost his new wife and now has to scrape together $8,000 to repay her parents for her funeral - but he has quit gambling.

With the help of pals and con men Mutha and Vinny (Craig Robinson, Billy Gardell), and the death-defying paraplegic The Trake (Seymour Cassel), he succeeds, only to be mugged by desperate Danny (Kevin Breznahan).

Forced to borrow from a peripatetic loan shark (Dan Hedaya), Lucky faces the prospect of gambling to pay him back. At the same time, he meets fellow compulsive gambler Theresa (Ever Carradine), who's looking to him for help in battling her own addiction.

Does Lucky triumph in the end? It would be a pretty short series if he did, but the game's not over yet.

"You don't want him to gamble," Cullen says, "you don't want him to gamble, you don't want him to gamble. In the end, he's gonna gamble."

After that, Lucky's going to look in the mirror and have a chat with himself about it. "The mirror is a continuing force throughout the show," Cullen says. "For us, with Lucky being a card player, always keeping it tight to the vest, not showing his hand, the mirror became the only time he's really honest."

Executive producer Robb Cullen, Mark's brother, also plays Lucky's card-dealer boss, Stan. "The story of Lucky," Robb explains, "is a guy who is a great gambler who doesn't want to gamble but has a compulsion to do it. That's the conflict that he plays every week."

"And a lot of times," Mark says, "he is his own worst enemy, in that he always does the wrong thing, but for the right reasons. He sticks his neck out all the time."

"I wouldn't qualify Lucky as a bad human being at all," Corbett says. "I don't think he steals. His friends will, but he won't. He doesn't. He has some ethics."

After several seasons as a regular on "Northern Exposure" and a season as the star of "The Visitor," and especially after coming off the success of "My Big Fat Greek Wedding," Corbett wasn't particularly interested in the TV grind.

But the quirky pilot script for "Lucky," and a promise of 13 episodes completed over three months, got him interested.

Also, having broken ground in its uncompromising cop drama "The Shield," FX offered Corbett more creative freedom than he might have found at a broadcast network. "What I liked about this whole thing was, it was irreverent," he says.

"After working on 'Sex and the City' for two years and being able to talk about any subject matter and use the cornucopia of swear words that my contemporaries use in our everyday speech, it's tough for me to work on a show for 12 to 14 hours a day where I might have to wear a detective's outfit and say, 'I'm going to haul your friggin' butt downtown if you don't tell me what I want to know.'"

"I like how irreverent 'Lucky' is, and I thought it was a ballsy move."

"What we're doing is showing the human condition," Robb Cullen says. "We're not judging it."

"That's for other people to do," Mark Cullen adds.

Tugging at Lucky's heartstrings and conscience along the way is Theresa, who has a bad marriage and troubles all her own. "She wakes up every morning," Mark says, "wanting it to be better. She wants it fixed. That's the constant battle. A lot of the dialogue is, can a recovering addict be with an active addict?"

In "Lucky," premiering Tuesday on FX, John Corbett stars as the title character, a hard-luck gambler fighting his own compulsions while trying to find his way back to the straight and narrow.
